ARCTIC GIVES UP TRAGIC SECRET HIDDEN 17 YEARS

Eskimos Confess to Killing Peary Aid.

BY GEORGE PALMER PUTNAM

(Copyright, 1926, by the New York Times.)

ON BOARD THE SCHOONER MOR-

RESEY, STONEY, CAPE BRETON

ISLAND, Sept. 24.—The Arctic has given up another secret. Up on Whale sound, in north Greenland, a few weeks ago was disclosed to me the most unexpected, perhaps the strangest, story of tragedy that has come out of the north; of a secret kept 17 years and likely kept forever if an

Eskimo's conscience, awakened as he admitted the white man's Christianity, had not loosed his tongue.

That G. Marvin, leader of the next to last supporting party sent back by

Peary from the very shadow of the north pole in 1909, did not drown.

This, until now, has been the record.

Marvin was killed by an Eskimo.

Tangled Skein Unraveled.

Up in North Bay, only a few hun-ded miles from the top of the world,

the tangled skein of circumstances has only unraveled during the last few months at the hands of a mission, a trader and the eminent

Danish explorer, Knud Rasmussen, who is a sort of godfather to the people of this isolated Smith

sund sound.

And as the facts come into focus and upon the scene. Here I found them, substantially as they were told before the appropriate authorities at Washington, D. C., by Dr. Rasmussen.

Now G. Marvin of Cornell university, less than 10 years old, next to

Peary's right hand man on the expedition which won the pole,

April 6, 1909, he accompanied the party to 85.38 degrees, turning back there, Barlett alone of the white men accompanying the leader further. Subsequently, the two backed with him, Kudluktoot and

and the latter better known as

Harrigan, reached the Roosevelt and

Peary's death. On April 16,

he said, he had broken through the ice while trying to cross a lead and drowned. The truth is that

Marvin was shot and killed by Kudluktoot.

Chalm Self-Defense.

This farthest north murder, say the Eskimos, was committed to save the life of Harrigan. The two of them were stuck to it for 17 years.

Last summer, at Karmah on Angled Island, Kudluktoot formally became Christian.

He was baptized. Following the baptism he called his people and told them the story, and then he told Jens Olsen, the missionary.

The confession has been made in full and substantiated by Harrigan, the two being painstakingly questioned

separately. Their answers tally, although only there is small likelihood of such a statement being untrue

in substance, even if any details were slightly off 17 years, which, in this instance, they appeared not to be.

Story of the Slayers.

The confession is harder to believe—and, paradoxically, harder to doubt—

because one knows the gentle, amazing strength and even natures of these fine people. And among these, the centrality of all the dwellers of the north, there is none with a better reputation than Kudluktoot. A "Peary friend" of fine standing, his intelligence, energy, and good nature marked him out at once among the many with whom he had some contact this summer.

Dismissed from the questioning,

he told the story of the Eskimos:

"We were three or four days from the north pole, back with sled and dogs on the farthest north. Harrigan was with the sled, untangling the lines. Marvin and Kudluktoot went ahead, diverging perhaps half a mile from each other, seeking the best route and searching for the out trail.

Marvin Loses His Temper.

Harrigan, the dogs straightened out, and the way Kudluktoot had been following the other Eskimo, he was following Marvin. Marvin was very angry, they felt that Harrigan should follow him. "He lost his temper," Kudluktoot said. "He threw his things off the sled and said he would not stay with us."

The men said that Marvin, seeming out of self-control, ordered the dogs away without food, or clothes, and that they were afraid of Mar-some one near and dear to you were railroaded into an insane asylum." Aid. Boutell hung prohibition onto the Democratic party, declaring that at no time in the history of America was personal liberty at such a low ebb as during the last Democratic national administration. "Prohibition is the child of Democracy and now the Democrats propose to slay their own child," he said.

The platform was drafted by a resolutions committee of 25, headed by County Reviewer Charles V. Barrett, nominee for reelection.

THE PLATFORM

The Republican county platform declares it to be of first importance that the nation continue under Republican rule and thus "prevent Democratic tariff tinkering and destructive business regulations."

The platform then continues in part: "We believe that the interests of our country can best be promoted by adhering strictly to the wise policy laid down by George Washington of maintaining friendly relations with all foreign nations, but entering into entangling alliances with none."

"We believe that the participation of our government as a member of the permanent court of international justice, commonly called the world court, is fraught with grave danger."

Small Volstead Law

"The Republican party was founded upon the basis of individual liberty. Standing upon this fundamental principle of republicanism, we declare that the attempt to enforce the Volstead act has proven a ghastly failure, a failure involving the waste of millions of tax moneys and carrying in its train a growing disrespect for all law, a breaking down of the moral character of American youth, and a corruption of public life that threatens the foundation of representative government."

"Nations, like individuals, must pay their just obligations, and we unhesitatingly voice our opposition to cancellation of war debts owing this country by foreign governments."

"We believe in home rule in Illinois wherever the obvious rights of the state come in conflict with the policy of national centralized domination."

"We stand firmly for home rule applied to our local governing agencies. We steadfastly adhere to the principle that the people of Cook county, who pay the bills, should control through their elected officers, the power to tax all property in the county."

"We believe the centralizing of power to tax in any commission appointed by the governor is a step backward in a representative form of government."

Commend Canal Trustees

"We heartily commend the sanitary district of Chicago for its campaign of protection to preserve the health of the people of Chicago and Cook county with the federal government and its cooperation for their plan for sewage disposal."

"We believe that all park districts in Chicago and Cook county should be divorced from state control."

"We reaffirm the principle enunciated by our forefathers, 'taxation without representation is tyranny.' Cook county's representation in the legislature is guaranteed by the constitution."

"This county has not had constitutional representation in the legislature since 1900, and until such representation is granted its ratio of state taxes should be reduced in proportion to its ratio of representation."

"We favor completion of navigable waterways from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and pledge our aid to bring these projects to a successful and early conclusion."

"The prompt transmission to all taxing bodies of monies due them will increase the revenues available to the city, the board of education and all other public agencies for constructive purposes by obviating unnecessary borrowing and consequent waste in interest payments."

"Our candidate for county treasurer has pledged himself to the establishment of that policy in this office, and

CONGRESS OF POLAND BOWS TO PILSUDSKI AND HIS WARRIORS

(Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune.)

WARSAW, Sept. 24.—The revolutionary fever seized Warsaw today following a political revolt in the sejm (parliament) against Marshal Jozef Pilsudski's army budget. One regiment of Uhlans and the 8th infantry regiment marched to the railroad station. The general staff arrived a short time later. Marshal Pilsudski, who was called from his visit to St. Petersburg, met the troops at the station, where they waited for him to take command of them to march on parliament.

But parliament already had capitulated and passed the budget, and Marshal Pilsudski's arrival was turned into a demonstration of triumph. He headed the troops in a triumphal march through the city.

The crisis followed parliament's refusal to pass the war department's supplementary budget, appropriating 12,000,000 zloty ($1,600,000 more for the army. It was the first test of strength between the government and parliament. It is predicted the marshal may replace the government with a complete military dictatorship.

as this means at least $2,500,000 in increased revenues without a single penny of increased taxation, we ask all citizens to help us establish this rule as the permanent policy of the county treasurer's office."

"The foundation of free government is the sanctity of the ballot box. In Cook county the election machinery, upon the proper functioning of which rests honest and effective government, is under the control of the county judge."

"The present occupant of that office has repeatedly confessed that under his administration there has never been an honest election in Chicago, and in the public mind the responsibility for these conditions must attach to the county judge."

"In order to reestablish public confidence in the honesty of election in Cook county, we declare as essential, that there shall be chosen as county judge, a man with the courage and capacity to honestly and efficiently perform the duties of that great office, and who presents as a candidate for that office a man who measures up to every requirement of that standard."

"The law contemplates that the county judge shall appoint election commissioners representing two major political parties, who shall have charge of the election machinery and take all necessary measures to insure honesty in elections, and that the county judge should devote his entire time to the duties of his judicial office."

"We pledge our candidate for county judge to appoint on the board of election commissioners representing both major parties, citizens whose character, integrity and standing in the community will be a guarantee of honest elections."

"We deplore the abuse of the parole and pardon law, and pledge ourselves to aid in the enactment of legislation which will prevent this abuse, so that professional criminals will not, after conviction, be turned back upon the community."

"The Republican party has always stood for honesty, efficiency, courtesy, and economy in public service, and our candidates are pledged to continue their party's traditional policy in this regard."

CHINESE TROOPS FIRE ON U.S. SHIP; KILL AN OFFICER

British Gunboat Replies to Attackers' Shots.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

(Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune.)

PEKING, Sept. 24.—Soldiers of the northern China armies which are commanded by Marshal Wu Pei-fu today fired on a steamer belonging to the Standard Oil Company of New York, below Shao, near Hankow, on the Yangtze river. The quartermaster of the steamer, which is said to have been the Moyang, was killed.

Near the place where the American ship was fired on the British gunboat Scourge also was attacked. It returned the fire of the Chinese troops.

A customs launch at Kongsong was attacked by Chinese pirates today. The American gunboat Pampana is pursuing the pirates.

Americans Rescue Women

All British traffic on the Yangtze above Ichang is suspended, owing to the refusal of the pilots to conduct merchantmen or warships. The Americans continue to remove British women and children on a ship of the Standard Oil Company of New York, after getting severely to Ichang under hostile conditions.

The entire situation is growing worse. Two more American destroyers have arrived at Hankow. The siege of the nearby city of Wuchang is entering the twenty-fifth day. Twenty Americans, two Germans, two Irish, and two Italians in the city are suffering from lack of food. The city is being bombed daily.

Chinese Attack Britain.

(Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune.)

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—In the face of vigorous protests by Lord Robert Cecil of Great Britain, Chao Hsin-chu, Chinese delegate to the league of nations council, attacked Great Britain's policy in permitting British warships to fire on Wanshan on Sept. 5.

"On July 8 and Aug. 2 and 29 the British merchant vessels 'Tyankong,' 'Wanlu' and 'Chall' sailed up the Yangtze at full speed," Chao said. "A number of wooden ships and smaller boats were wrecked by the British merchant ships and more than 100 passengers, military officers, and soldiers, as well as wood and silver, were lost. When the Chinese inquiry was started, a British cruiser interferred, and before the matter was settled a more serious incident occurred."

"A British gunboat arrived at Wanshan on Sept. 5 and opened fire on the town and gendarmerie, killing more than 100. Following that other British cruisers bombarded Wanshan. More than 1,000 houses were destroyed and thousands of civilians were killed. The Chinese returned the fire in self-defense."

"Owing to the seriousness of the incidents, which are endangering peace, my government has instructed me to make known the facts to the assembly."

Lord Cecil replied that the Chinese violated the rules of procedure in making serious charges without giving the British an opportunity to reply.

TROOPS PATROL MIAMI STREETS; FEAR RACE WAR

Conscription of Labor Starts Rioting.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Miami, Fla., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Soldiers of the Florida National Guard tonight patrolled Miami's black belt of 20,000 Negroes to prevent another outbreak of the rioting in which two United States sailors and three Negroes were shot and seriously wounded today.

As the patrols of four men each with bayonets fixed kept watch in and out of the edge of the section, Col. V. B. Collins, commander of the troops, had two hundred men and auto trucks on duty, ready for any outbreak.

Fear Further Outbreaks.

Fear was expressed that further outbreaks might add the danger of serious rioting to other dangers following the tropical hurricane of a week ago.

J. D. Allen and E. N. Melbourne were the sailors shot in today's fighting. Neither was seriously wounded. One of the three Negroes shot was a woman. It was reported that the three Negroes were perhaps fatally wounded.

Trouble started when the sailors went with a truck driver to the Negro quarter to conscript labor. Conscription of Negro labor was put into effect immediately after the hurricane and still continues, and it is said the Negroes have resented it.

Conscription Is Severe.

Necessity has made the conscription methods rather severe. A group of white citizens or soldiers would take a Negro automobile truck, drive towards the Negro quarter and pick up every Negro it passed on the street.

The conscripting was done under the menace of guns and no excuses on the parts of the Negroes went. It was simply "get in that truck" and later, "get down and go to work."

Many of the Negroes were said to have been on their way to jobs, and these were forced to work with the ones who were idle.

As the two sailors fell wounded in the rioting, two thousand men and women gathered about them shouting and yelling. Fifty or sixty shots were fired before the arrival of police, deputy sheriffs and soldiers who sent the mob scurrying. Twenty armed Negroes were arrested.

$5,000,000 IN NEEDED

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Miami, Fla., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Miami will need about $5,000,000 for rebuilding homes for the destitute, the relief committee announced today. Relief funds will only be applied in this way, as merchants and hotels, all the town prospering, will finance their rebuilding.

There is a feeling in town that the relief section should not seek outside funds, as there is $17,000,000 in the one treasury and the state is out of debt. But use of this money would require special legislative action and the need for new homes for the poor people is urgent. Five hundred already have applied for relief in getting roofs on houses. Many are living in tents or crowded with neighbors.

Town Stands Alone.

At Coral Gables, six miles northwest of Miami, outside help has not been sought. A committee headed by Col. J. F. O'Leary, president of the chamber of commerce, made a survey and administered quick financial aid in a novel manner. This is through a $100,000 bond issue backed by the city treasury. The population of Coral Gables, a city built within a year, is 1,200.

The damage there was small. Home owners need slight repairs and are getting funds from the bond issue on loans or mortgages.

In a few days this city, built in gay and colorful ways, will be ready to receive the great hurricane.

Homeless in Florida Fed at Soup Kitchens

Scene in Miami, where relief workers are busy caring for the injured and helpless, while the more fortunate are starting to dig out and rebuild the city. The city is under martial law and National Guards have orders to shoot looters.

ACTRESS TO GET BULK OF $200,000 ESTATE OF RICHARD GRADWELL

New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Uncertainties in the disposition of the $200,000 estate of Richard Gradwell, president of the Producers Securities corporation and former president of the Oliver Typewriter company, were at an end today. Surrogate O'Brien admitted to probate a will which left most of the estate to Miss Elizabeth Irving, an actress.

The will admitted to probate makes no mention of Mr. Gradwell's father, four brothers, and sister. Concerning the widow, it says:

"I have made no provision for my wife for the reason that for ten years we have been living apart, and during our married life I provided for her to such an extent that she should be able to maintain herself in comfort for the remainder of her life."

There is a story in building codes is extending it. Dr. M. H. Tallman's new hospital has been thrown open to injured from Hollywood and other places. Nurses and doctors worked by torch light until light power was made by tractor engines. There were many volunteers, such as Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of W. J. Bryan, who went to work in kitchen while wealthy residents formed a vigilance committee and sent the National Guard away.

The revised list of dead in Miami is 73 identified whites, 16 unidentified whites, 15 identified colored and one unidentified. This does not include Hollywood, where 34 are dead, but takes in Miami Beach, Homestead, Coconut Grove and Hialeah.

Chicagoans Are Praised.
Herodism of Capt. and Mrs. Jack Stultz, formerly of 1900 Commercial avenue, South Chicago, and now custodians of the Biscayne Bay Yacht club, was praised here today by city officials for their activities during the hurricane. Although the storm sent waves entirely over the second story porch of the yacht club, the courageous couple worked steadily throughout the hurricane.

They said today that a number of Chicago people had reported to them that they were safe. Among these

STORM RELIEF FUND $106,437; MORE IS NEEDED

Chicago Agencies Busy Gathering Cash.

With financial needs of Florida becoming more and more apparent, Chicago yesterday swept its fund for relief to a total of $106,437, more than one-third of the $300,000 quota set by the city council.

New evidence of what is necessary to return families to rebuilt homes came yesterday to the American Red Cross headquarters at 616 South Michigan avenue, and to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Day Brings in $31,539.71.

Yesterday's collections amounted to $31,539.71, which added to the $74,897.29 previously obtained brought the total to $106,437.

Meanwhile Mayor Dever, Frederick H. Scott, acting president of the Association of Commerce and chairman of the Chicago Florida relief committee, and all others active in the drive for funds were urging prompt public responses.

There is no more pressing duty before every loyal Chicagoan today than that of succoring Florida," the mayor said.

From officials and employees of the Chicago Surface Lines came $12,000, largest contribution announced yesterday from the headquarters of the Association of Commerce. The total quota set for all public utilities in Chicago was $12,500, and the traction employees still are collecting. Another check will be mailed in a few days.

The Western Electric company sent in a check for $1,000, and reported it is taking care of about 200 employees who were in the devastated district.

Leon Hartman of the Hartman Furniture company cabled his firm from Europe to give $500 on his behalf, and that contribution was matched by Hart Schaffner & Marx, and Lee, Higginson & Co.

Radio Brings in Cash.

The radio stations of the city, broadcasting appeals have begun to enrich the fund. WEBB topped the list with $666.37, and from W-G-N. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station, came $362.50. Station WSCB sent in $210.

Among the evidences of the need for cash was a message from Col. H. F. Miller, in Florida for the Chicago relief committee.

"All relief agencies agree they will need substantial help for months to come," the message said. "Actual conditions are greatly improved, but the whole storm district still was in darkness last night, and all public utilities are working day and night under great strain to restore service."

"Money spent through the American Red Cross organization will be spent with care and efficiency and without waste."

An appeal for trained social workers was received from Florida by Thomas

$2,012,000 RAISED OF $5,000,000 FUND FOR FLORIDA RELIEF

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—National contributions to the Florida disaster relief fund now total $2,012,000, less than one-half of the minimum amount of $5,000,000 needed to provide adequate relief measures.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the American National Red Cross, announced tonight. These figures do not include contributions raised in New York City and Florida.

After conferring by telephone with Vice Chairman James L. Fieser in Jacksonville, Mr. Payne called on the large cities for renewed efforts. He reported that the need for instant relief is even greater than at first indicated, with 5,100 homes totally destroyed, 6,000 injured, and 50,000 homeless.

M. Temple, executive secretary of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, who announced that eight women, headed by Miss Helen Caldwell, will leave for Miami on Tuesday. Miss Caldwell is assistant director of war service.

"These workers may stay in Florida for many months, restoring shattered families to homes and helping them to win back to independence," Mr. Temple said.

JURY DELVES INTO SIKORSKY CRASH; FONCK IS BLAMED
New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—A grand jury investigation into the fatal crash of the Sikorsky biplane that hopped off from Roosevelt field, Long Island, for Paris Tuesday morning was begun today. It was learned that Col. Harold E. Hartney of the Argonauts, the organization sponsoring the flight, had been called as a witness.

Col. Hartney, in an affidavit, charged that Capt. Rene Fonck was incompetent to handle the plane.

Capt. Fonck was questioned by District Attorney Elvin Edwards, with Robert C. Crete as interpreter. Col. Hartney, in the affidavit, revealed that it was over his opposition to Capt. Fonck as the pilot for the ocean hop that he resigned from his office in the Argonauts.

"Irresponsibility" and "poor pilotage" were the reasons he gave for his stand against the French war ace.

He charged also that when the Sikorsky taxied across Roosevelt field the tail of the ship had not been lifted, so that a take-off was impossible.

CHICAGO GIRL IN "MISS X." ROLE IN AIMEE CASE

Confesses Part in Plot to Shield Evangelist.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. Babe Daniels, 26 years old, who says she is from Chicago, is on her way from San Francisco tonight, in custody of Detective Ed King. She has confessed that she is the "Miss X" in the Aimee McPherson case, who signed a false affidavit that she, and not Mrs. McPherson, occupied a cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea with Kenneth Ormiston, Angelus Temple radio operator.

With them, also under arrest, is Harry Melosh, former Los Angeles clothing salesman and private detective, who says he obtained Mrs. Daniels for the role of "Miss X," and who admits he is the "Joe Doe Martin" for whom perjury warrants have been issued here.

Swears to Affidavit.
Before leaving San Francisco this afternoon Melosh swore to a long affidavit giving dates, addresses, and names in a lengthy narrative of activities which he asserts were plotted by Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, a Los Angeles lawyer and a private detective acting for Mrs. McPherson.

The lawyer mentioned by Melosh tonight indignantly denied the truth of the latter's story, and threatened to begin criminal proceedings against Melosh on the strength of it. Similar threats were made by Nick Harris, head of a Pacific coast detective agency, who asserts that it was his agency to which Melosh's affidavits were submitted.

District Attorney Keyes tonight stated that he wanted to question Melosh and Mrs. Daniels closely before accepting their statements.

The Other "Miss X."
Mr. Keyes said he was well satisfied with the verification already accumulated in support of the previous "Miss X confession" given him under oath, by Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Bella, with which the Melosh-Babe Daniels confession does not agree.

Loudest in denial of the Melosh confession were Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Kennedy. They gave out public statements telling of being approached by Melosh with an offer to produce framed evidence in Mrs. McPherson's behalf. They said they showed Melosh to the door.

Although discrepancies appeared in Melosh's affidavit, police investigation substantiated parts of his statement.

Police went to 4505 South Gramercy street, which Melosh said was to be "discovered" as the first place in which we were going to say that Mrs. McPherson was taken by kidnapers.

There they found a ripped open mat-tees as Melosh had said. Melosh said that the mattress had been ripped to make it appear as a fake hiding place for a green bathing suit and a bottle of dope inside the mattress.

"The lawyer was going to get us a bathing suit just like the one Mrs. McPherson wore when she disappeared at Ocean Park on May 18," Melosh said. The bathing suit was found there today.

Was Given $450.
Melosh's story further asserted that he was given $450 by Mrs. McPherson to obtain a fake Miss X, and a fake "Steve the Kidnaper" who would confess to kidnapping and take his chances with a five year prison sentence, in return for $5,000 which Mrs. McPherson promised.

The fake "Steve" was arrested in Oakland today, in the person of Thomas Young, a bootlegger, dispatches state. This part of the plot failed, Melosh said, when Young demanded $10,000 as his split.

Mrs. Daniels made out a sworn statement in which she said that Mrs. McPherson told her, "Please, O please, won't you be a dear little girl and say that you were at Carmel with Mr. Ormiston instead of me?" Mrs. Daniels also said that Mrs. McPherson promised that she would never want for money in the future.

DIES AFTER COLLAPSE.
Charles Parker, 64, 1970 Milwaukee avenue, fell as he boarded a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train yesterday at the LeClaire station. Inside the car he collapsed, and died later at the Bryntown hospital.

JAP ENVOY FIRED ON; FOES OF KING ALFONSO BLAMED

Tokio Secretary Shot in France.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Sept. 24.—Simultaneously with the recent discovery of a plot to murder King Alfonso, Dictator Primo de Rivera, and the archbishop of Madrid, an automobile bearing the Japanese ambassador to Spain, which resembles the king's, was fired on in France, near the Spanish border while returning to San Sebastion, THE TRIBUNE is informed. It is believed the attackers thought they were firing on King Alfonso. The first secretary of the Japanese embassy was wounded; but the ambassador ordered the automobile to proceed, not even mentioning the attempt to the French authorities.

An anarchist arrested last Monday confessed the plot to blow up the king and Gen. de Rivera in a train tunnel when both were returning from their visit to the provinces. Two bombs were found near the place.

The confession of the anarchist is supposed to implicate the anarchist Internationale at Biarritz, which also is said to have conspired to take the lives of the heads of other governments. He mentioned the names of former Deputy Macia and a former colonel in the army, who was exiled to Paris for his enmity against Gen. de Rivera and for his agitation for Catalonian separatism. Letters found on the anarchist, in addition to mentioning Gen. de Rivera and the king, cited actions by a certain archbishop and damaging to the anarchist cause. This makes the authorities believe the anarchist had the archbishop of Madrid in mind.

Señor Macia and other Paris supporters are said to have purchased 5,000 revolvers.

See Queen Mother's Hand.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BIARRITZ, Sept. 24.—The queen mother, Maria Cristina, famous for her political sagacity, was behind the move to displace Dictator Primo de Rivera with Sanches Guerra, the Conservative leader, THE TRIBUNE was told today.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 29.—"I think Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful—I was a sufferer from skin trouble and I know what they did for me. I tried various treatments, but none gave more than temporary relief. A friend recommended Resinol and I bought a jar of ointment and a cake of soap. After the second application of each, the itching stopped and when I had used the Resinol products for five weeks, there was not a trace of the trouble left." (Signed) Arthur Smith, 489 Hudson Ave.

STAR GAZERS GET READY TO SCAN MARS FOR LIFE

Planet Again Near Earth on Oct. 27.

Mars, neighbor to the world, again is to approach near to our sphere, offering once more a possible solution of that great query: Are there living Martians?

Astronomers will dust off their giant eye pieces on Oct. 27, pointing them at the tantalizing planet of war, for then Mars will be dropping by for a visit, a mere 42,600,000 miles from the earth, according to Prof. E. H. Frost at the University of Chicago's Yerkes observatory.

Another field day of watchful waiting will come on Nov. 4, for on that day astronomical conditions in the heavens will be ideal, Prof. Frost declares.

Radio on Alert.

Radio scientists also will strive to tune in on Mars, for in the fall of 1924, when the planet came the closest to earth, numerous radio listeners set the land agog with the claim they had heard strange signals. Their beliefs persisted, despite the contemptuous pooh-poohs of astronomers, who held ridiculous the thought of radio communication with Mars.

And from the house-tops all may see the great fiery red planet, glowing as the brightest orb in the firmament. Although Mars will be some 7,100,000 miles farther away than in 1924, when 68,000,000 miles spanned the gap between, observers in the northern hemisphere will be blessed with a better view, for it will appear north of the celestial equator instead of south, as before.

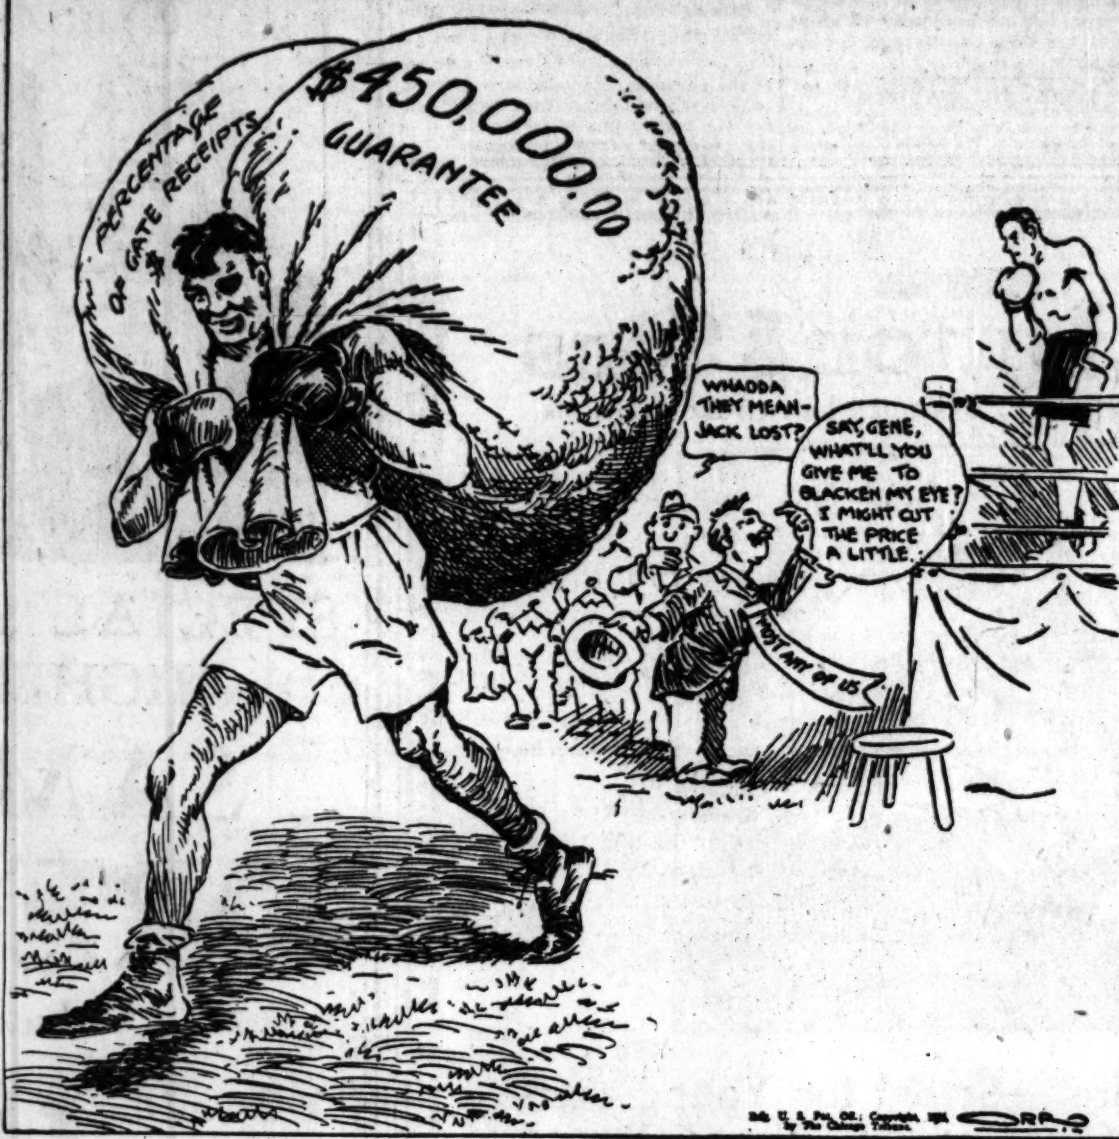

"Mars thus will be much higher above the mists of the southern horizon," Prof. Frost explained. "The air should therefore be more transparent and more steady, so that the image of the planet's disk should tremble less as a result of the atmospheric waves." Prof. Frost holds forth no hope of animal life on the planet Mars. Prof. Kohler, in charge of the Jungfrau observatory in Switzerland, however, says that two years ago his telescope revealed conditions on Mars which made habitation on the planet possible.

A new apparatus for attachment to the forty-inch telescope at the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., which will photograph the planet with a new color process, is now being perfected by Prof. Ross of the observatory staff.

Temperature Vital Factor.

Most important in the search for the secret of the planet is the establishment of its surface temperature, Prof. Frost stated. "Given air, light, and moisture, plant life might endure, with the one provision that the temperature be not so high, or so low, as to prevent. Other scientists who cling to the thought there is animal life on

CITY EMPLOYEE IS KILLED BY AUTO; TOLL IS NOW 609

Two deaths yesterday as a result of automobile accidents in Cook county raised the 1926 toll to 609.

Martin J. Solon, 65 years old, 214 North Lamon avenue, an electrician employed by the city, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile while attempting to cross Madison street at Lamon avenue. He died a few minutes later at the West Suburban hospital, where he had been hurried by Clarence Berry, 132 South Laverne avenue, driver of the car which struck him.

Floyd Bell, 21 years old, of Northbrook, died at the Wheeling hospital of injuries received on Sept. 21, when an automobile in which he was riding, driven by Elmer Meyers, also of Northbrook, was struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train near Dundee, Ill. Meyers was killed instantly in the accident.

FOUR PUNISHED AT COUNTY JAIL; PLOT DISCOVERED

Four prisoners in the county jail yesterday were ordered into solitary confinement as a result of a plot on their part to allow one of the prisoners, held for rape, to go into the Boys' court to answer to a minor charge of disorderly conduct. This is the first difficulty the new warden has experienced and he wasted no time in punishing those involved.

Tony Bartos is held for grand jury action under $3,000 bond. Frank Klimas, one of his cellmates, was held from the Boys' court for disorderly conduct. When the call came to go to court Bartos answered to the name of Klimas and, because of a new guard, managed to get by. The mistake was discovered in the Boys' court when Klimas' relatives failed to recognize him.

IOWA BARBER DROPS DEAD. Guy H. Arnold, 53 years old, 310 South Third street, West Cedar Rapids, Ia., a barber, dropped dead, supposedly of heart disease, yesterday at the Union station.

Daylight Saving Ends Tonight for Chicago and Its Suburbs

There'll be an extra hour of sleep for everybody in Chicago tonight. Daylight saving time ends officially at 1 a. m. tomorrow and at that hour clocks in the city and its suburbs will be set back to 1 a. m., central standard time. Schools, offices, stores, theaters, the stock exchange, board of trade, post office, and courts will conform to the changed schedule, as well as suburban trains, the elevated and surface lines, and busses.

Whether the timepieces will be turned ahead again next April as they have been every year since 1921 will depend on the outcome of a referendum on Nov. 2, when citizens for the second time will vote on the daylight saving issue.

The Question on Ballot.

The question, to be checked yes or no, will go on a little ballot as follows: "Shall the daylight saving law as now operative be continued in force and effect?"

At the first referendum six years ago, the plan was adopted by a plurality of 61,151, the vote being 353,145 to 291,934. Before the election the city council went on record for the new time by an overwhelming majority. Friends of the plan, who declare that the benefits of the extra hour of daylight have been conclusively shown in the last six summers, predict that the majority for it in November will be even heavier than before. Chicago never will go back to the old time during the hot season, they say.

Other Cities Adopt Plan.

An inquiry yesterday revealed that many of the largest cities in the east have retained the daylight saving schedule. Massachusetts and Rhode Island have made it mandatory under state laws, according to Frederick Rex, city statistician.

$2,000,000 in annual salaries to students employed through the School of Commerce Employment Bureau

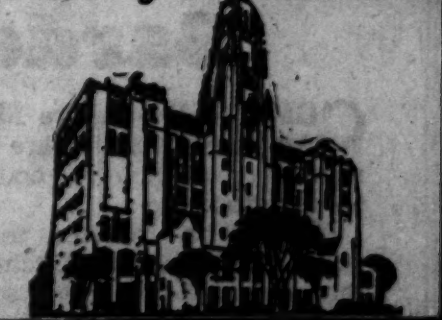

The Bureau of Employment of Northwestern University School of Commerce endeavors to find positions for students who wish it. No fee is charged for this service. Last year the Bureau secured positions for more than one thousand students.

A large program of service is possible this year when the School of Commerce moves into Wabash Hall, its new building on the downtown campus, Lake Shore Drive and Chicago Avenue. Commensurate club rooms and a large dining hall are provided for the convenience of students. The enlarged Commerce Library and the Robert H. Gray Library already furnish facilities for study.

With an enlarged curriculum and commensurate new class rooms, the school offers increased opportunity to employed men and women to secure education of university grade without sacrifice of position or income. Students of high school education receive credit towards degrees or diplomas; others may be admitted as special students.

Registration now open at 31 West Lake Street
Classes open October 14th in new Wabash Hall. For special bulletin on courses in which you are interested, write or call 21 West Lake Street or telephone Randolph 1997.

Go Back to Senate.

been the reaction that it is doubtful the world court resolution could muster a two-thirds majority in the next session.

Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), leader of the fight against the world court, initiated a movement to get the next senate to vote the nation out of the court once it got in. Now it looks as if this would be unnecessary. Either the President will halt the whole proceedings on the basis of the unfavorable action at Geneva on our reservations or he will refer the new protocol to the senate and let Mr. Borah preside over the obsequies.

Shouting from Households.
The new protocol might find a few friends on the Democratic side, but there would be none on the Republican, according to current indications. High world court senators as Willis (Rep., O.), and Wadsworth (Rep., N. Y.), are shouting from the house-tops in their campaigns for reelection that no modification of the senate reservations will be considered. Willis wants to make an issue of the question, impugning to his opponent, Mr. Pomeroy, a disposition to agree with the interpreters of the senate reservations. It is not unlikely that the action at Geneva will furnish the forthcoming congressional elections with a new issue. Candidates for the senate will be put on record as to whether they will vote for or against the new protocol.

The procourt propagandists may revive their vast organization which piloted the world court measure through the senate in the last session. They may bring pressure to bear on candidates to pledge themselves to accept the Geneva modification of our reservations.

In view of the reaction against the world court, however, it is doubtful that any candidate will promise to vote for the new protocol. Probably most of them will denounce it and pledge themselves to vote against it.

Takes Pessimistic View.
The President, it also was learned, takes a pessimistic view of the prospects of success attending the disarmament conference the league has voted to call. He has observed that the differences between the European nations and the South American countries on proposals for reducing land armaments make agreement exceedingly difficult. In connection with reducing naval

LEAGUE OF NATIONS CALLS WORLD DISARM PARLEY WITHIN YEAR

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The league of nations assembly tonight unanimously adopted a resolution that a general conference for the reduction of armaments shall be convened before next September, unless material difficulties prevent.

M. Paul-Boncour for France, Viscount Cecil for Great Britain, and Herr Von Schubert for Germany pledged their countries to support the conference with all earnestness. Lord Cecil portrayed the world as anxiously awaiting results from Geneva, but warned that it would be fatal to hold the conference before arrangements were complete, because if it met and failed it would be the greatest disaster to the countries of peace since founding the league of nations.

armaments the difficulty of agreement is even greater in a conference including many nations having no navies at all.

Mr. Coolidge is of the opinion that naval armament reduction could be best achieved in a small conference of the naval powers. At the same time he does not wish to discourage disarmament efforts by the league and will cooperate with American representation in the conference and do everything possible to make it a success.

DAWES TO GO AFTER DUCK AND PRAIRIE CHICKEN

Vice President Charles G. Dawes will leave his home in Evanston next Wednesday night for a week's hunting trip near Lincoln, Neb.

In the party will be Gen. John J. Pershing, John T. McCutcheon, Knowlton L. Ames and Glen Griswold, Rufus C. Dawes, Paul H. Davis, E. Ross Bartley, the Vice President's secretary, and Orestes Tefft of Boston. They will be guests of Mark W. and George Woods of Lincoln, on their private game preserve, which is said to be well supplied with ducks and prairie chicken.

The Vice President will return on Oct. 6. He is to address the American Legion at the annual convention in Philadelphia during the week of Oct. 11.

BROTHER SAYS H. M. DAUGHERTY BURNED RECORDS

Told Mal He Destroyed
Bank Ledger Sheets.

New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Harry M. Daugherty destroyed the leading records of the Midland National bank of Washington, D. C., sought by the government as proof in its conspiracy case against him. This was the testimony today by Mal Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general and president of the bank. He was MAL DAUGHERTY, called by the government as a witness in the trial of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government of its best services.

Mal Daugherty said his brother had told him of burning the pages of the bank's day book through which the government attempted to trace an alleged bribery check, as it yesterday traced $49,000 in securities to Miller.

Traced Check to Bank.
The examination was in continuation of the prosecution's revelations yesterday that a check for $22,163.81 paid to John T. King as proceeds of the sale of Liberty bonds, passed through the Midland bank on Oct. 19, 1921. The bonds sold, their numbers proved, were part of $391,000 worth paid to King by Richard Merton, German industrialist, on Oct. 1, 1921, as a reward for King's services in obtaining payment of Merton's $7,000,000 claim against the United States for property seized during the war.

Just before court adjourned at 4 p. m. United States Attorney Buckner completed circumstantial testimony, the purpose of which was to link Harry Daugherty with King through the medium of a $2,125 deposit in the former attorney general's account with his brother's bank.

This deposit, a New York check, was for the exact sum King received for Liberty bond coupons from some of the securities he received from Merton. King had cashed the coupons in New York on April 28, 1922, according to the testimony, and the deposit was made the following day in the Ohio bank.

Brother Is First Witness.
Mal Daugherty, who has been in court every day since the trial opened, was the first witness today. He was asked whether he had attended a session of the grand jury here last December in answer to a subpoena and replied in the affirmative. The subpoena called upon him to produce the original ledger sheet of the accounts of himself, Harry Daugherty, and "Joe W. Smith, extra."

"Did you produce these sheets?" asked Mr. Buckner. A—No, sir.

Q—You received a similar subpoena to produce these sheets for this trial? A—Yes.

Q—Did you produce them? A—No.

Q—When did you see these sheets? A—In October, 1925, two months earlier.

Q—Where did you see them? A—They were brought to New York when I was subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury in October.

Q—These particular sheets were not?

A—No.

MACKAY, HOME, ASKED ABOUT ELLIN, SAYS: "I ENJOYED FIGHT RADIO"

New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Clarence H. Mackay returned from Europe on the Mauretania today. He refused to discuss Irving Berlin and his wife, the former Ellin Mackay, from whom he has been estranged since their marriage, parrying all questions with the comment: "I followed the fight with great interest."

The Postal Telegraph company, of which he is president, radioed detailed round by round descriptions of the Dempsey-Tunney fight to Mr. Mackay.

requested, were they? A—No, sir.

Q—Afterward did you see them? A—I don't remember. My brother took them off.

Q—When you received the subpoena in December and were ordered to produce these records did you go to your brother and converse with him regarding producing these sheets? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Will you state the conversation?

Mr. Daugherty said he met his brother, who already had received his subpoena, in Columbus.

"I told him I was subpoenaed to produce these records and if he had them I'd like to have them."

Q—What did he say? A—He said, "I have not got them. I've destroyed them."

Q—Did the defendant tell you how he destroyed these papers? A—He said he burned them.

Q—Haven't you and Harry Daugherty gone over these papers many times—twenty or twenty-five times? A—Yes.

Q—You took them out to your shack in the country and examined them? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Nothing you have said here was untrue or influenced by him? A—No, sir.

Q—You didn't have any advance knowledge of a subpoena in September? A—No, sir.

Steuier inquired whether he might ask about the $22,000 check from John T. King which passed through the Midland bank, without having it construed as direct examination. The court ruled it would be direct examination and Steuier concluded with the witness, but later recalled him for the following questions:

Q—Did your brother say anything about how or why he destroyed the bank record? A—No; he merely said he took them to his shack and burned them.

Q—But why? A—Well, he said he could not make anything out of them.

FFYFE DENOUNCES PROPOSED STATE TAX AMENDMENT

BY OSCAR HEWITT.
Colin C. H. Fyffe, attorney for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, yesterday made a charge which borders on the sensational against the proposed amendment to the state constitution. The amendment is to be voted on at the November election.

If it is approved in that referendum, the legislature will have the power to impose taxes on municipal corporations or inhabitants or property thereof for corporate purposes, according to Mr. Fyffe. He asserted that adoption of the amendment will permit the legislature to take from Chicago and other cities their home rule in the levying of taxes. Under his interpretation of the amendment the legislature can designate the state tax commission to raise or lower the city's tax levies as the members of the commission deem best.

Section 10 of article 9 of the present constitution says the legislature shall not have the power to levy corporate taxes for cities.

The proposed amendment orders that the legislature shall have authority to provide for general law for the levy and collection of taxes for public purposes upon persons, property and income, "free from the limitations contained in section No. 10 of this (9th) article."

"That amendment will eliminate the restriction on the legislature which sections 9 and 10 of the present constitution now impose," Mr. Fyffe asserted. "No such blow has ever before been aimed at the structure of the government of this state."

"So far as Chicago is concerned, not a member of such tax commission need be a resident of the city. The commission may settle what the annual budget shall be, both in kind and amount. It may interfere, without legal control, in all the affairs of the city which are dependent on taxation."

"Chicago has been crying for years for home rule. Home rule over the rates and police regulation of public utilities is a small matter compared with the possibility of the loss of home rule over taxes raised for the city's maintenance and growth. The fact remains that under the proposed amendment all bridge is taken off the legislature. It will be given the power which has been denied it in two previous constitutions. It will be given a power which I doubt is given to any legislature in any state in this country."

"It is hard to say what would be the end of this. It is plain that with these limitations removed by the proposed amendment, the legislature would regain the power which the constitution wisely took from it."

SUPER HIGHWAY PLAN PRAISED BY PEORIA BODY

Seen as a Step in State Development.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The board of directors of Peoria Association of Commerce today passed resolutions commending the Cook county commission for their action in approving the $22,000,000 super-highway project. Pointing out the benefits to the entire state from such a system, the directors see it as the first step in a great highway connecting Chicago and St. Louis which would pass through Peoria.

The Peoria Resolution.

The resolution follows: "The board of directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce recognizes in the proposed $22,000,000 road program of the Cook county board of county commissioners the hopeful beginning of super-highway construction in Illinois. The widening of pavements in Cook county and in territory tributary thereto, Peoria regards as the first and logical step in the development of a super-highway traversing the Illinois river to Peoria and thence south to St. Louis.

"Such a highway not only would afford a great scenic route connecting Peoria with Chicago but would parallel the proposed lakes to gulf waterway, on which Peoria would be the most important downstate port, and would justify liberal state aid.

"The directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce note with gratification that Gov. Small and state high-

WASHINGTON RULE PROVIDES ARRESTS FOR JAYWALKERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Washington pedestrians may obey the traffic regulations at crossings where electric signal lights are in operation or go to jail, the board of district commissioners decided today.

While arrests will not be made for violation of the pedestrian control regulation for at least six months, Traffic Director Eldridge has planned to have policemen stationed at the intersections controlled by the lights to hand offenders pink cards, warning them that they have violated a traffic regulation. The traffic director believes that this will cause sufficient embarrassment to violators to keep them from repeating the offense.

At the end of a reasonable educational campaign Mr. Eldridge asks that arrests be made.

way officials have promised to co-operate with Cook county authorities in carrying out their program, and that $2,750,000 of state funds has been pledged in aid of this project.

Fund Is Due Chicago.

"This allocation of the state funds is due Chicago not only on the basis of motor vehicle license fees paid into the state treasury, but is also due to a general condition of traffic congestion in which all Illinois must be presumed to have a vital interest.

"The directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce therefore pledge their best efforts and the efforts of the citizenry of Peoria to co-operate in every possible way with all authorities concerned to the end that a super-highway connecting Peoria with Chicago may be constructed as soon as possible."

AGED MAN SHOT TO DEATH.

HUSBAND SLAYER JUSTIFIED, SAYS CORONER'S JURY

Woman Who Killed Her Mate Is Freed.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Jack Lewis, burglary, sentenced to 3 years in the Bridewell by Judge Emanuel Kiler.

Mrs. Marguerita Delveaux, 50 years old, the mother of three children, who killed her husband early Thursday, slept peacefully last night in her home at 130 West 114th street. She had been exonerated of blame in the killing when a coroner's jury, after twelve minutes of deliberation yesterday, called her act justifiable homicide. The humiliation she had suffered through her twenty-eight years of married life justified the slaying, the jury said.

In the meantime police and others were preparing to reopen the investigation, for they did not believe that a case so serious should be disposed of so quickly, at least not in the thirty hours that elapsed from the time of the shooting until the woman was back in her home freed.

Crowe's Office to Act.

Last night First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman announced that he would order police to gather all evidence in the case and present it to Assistant State's Attorney Freeman L. Fairbank. Should the evidence fail to uphold the coroner's jury's verdict, then the case will be presented to the grand jury for further action, Mr. Gorman promised.

Chief Collins, when told of the jury's action, expressed surprise.

"Taking of any human life is deplorable," he said. "This woman may have been justified, but it seems such a verdict should not have been reached in such a short time."

Other police pointed out that the murder toll in Chicago is steadily growing.

"I would have done the same thing had I been in her place," Martin H. Barriball, 11342 South State street, one of the jurors, said. "The evidence that was presented left us no other recourse."

Others who served on the jury were Luca Larocca, 11542 South State street; Frank Napoli, 114 East Kingston avenue; Elmer L. Riley, 11624 South Michigan boulevard; William Simpson, 11068 South Michigan, and Patrick V. Harrington, 24 West 113th street. Napoli is unmarried, but he, too, condemned the husband whose acts were what Mrs. Delveaux said her husband's were.

Deputy Coroner John J. Delidrich, who conducted the inquest at the Cooney undertaking parlors, 11511 South Michigan, upheld the action of the jury.

"They could not have decided otherwise," he said.

When Mrs. Delveaux appeared at the inquest she was accompanied by her three sons, Arnold, 15, Louis, 21, and Leo, 25. In addition to these, eighteen friends and neighbors were on hand to testify. But only the mother, her sons, and five others were called.

When their stories had been told, Deputy Coroner Delidrich told the jury to adjourn and consider the evidence they had. Twelve minutes later they announced their exoneration, with the recommendation that the woman be released from custody.

The witnesses all told stories of abuse which the wife had suffered at the hands of her husband for nearly 25 years, stories of how the wife had looked herself in her bedroom at night against her husband, stories of threats that the husband had made against his wife, stories of the husband's attention to other women and of his neglect of his wife and children, stories of constant quarreling.

GRIM FATE RIDES TO CORN BELT ON BORER'S ADVANCE

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—European corn borers have left whole fields of crops a worthless, disheartening mass of ghastly stalks in the infested area of Ontario, delegates of a tour preliminary to the international conference to be held in Detroit tomorrow found today. Two hundred men from various parts of the United States and Canada made the trip through Essex and Kent counties.

The corn borers are the most destructive pest that ever has invaded America, entomologists say.

If something is not done soon, farmers in the corn belt will be facing the same ruinous situation, and the death knell would be sounded for the Midwest's golden crop.

Domestic farmers have been forced to stop growing corn in the badly infested sections, and three big sweet corn canning factories were compelled to nail boards over their windows and leave their plants closed this summer. The pest has about put an end to the early sweet corn canning business in Ontario.

Stringent provincial laws have been passed recently to make farmers clean their fields of all vegetable waste, including stalks, ears, blades, weeds and other debris. Violation of the regulations costs farmers a fine of $50, and officials have the authority to go onto the farms, make a thorough clean up and add the cost to the grower's tax bill.

Discouragement is general among growers who cut down their acreage 80 per cent in the badly infested areas and 40 per cent over a vast part of the Ontario corn belt. They are turning to the growing of other crops.

Ira L. Graham, president of the Essex County Farm bureau, says his organization in the last few weeks has raised $100,000 to build a sugar beet factory and an equal amount to build a plant where grapes will be used in making wines, juices and jellies. Money also is being raised to build an alfalfa meal factory.

Which? -will keep your foods this winter

Select your Kelvinator now!

It is just as difficult to keep foods fresh and wholesome in heated homes in winter as it is in torrid summer weather.

If you try keeping your food out-of-doors or in a cold pantry, often it freezes. Then, too, you expose yourself to the danger of going—many times a day—from the warm kitchen into the cold winter air.

Why not decide now to avoid both of these dangers and the annoyances associated with them?

Select a Kelvinator; either a Cabinet model or one to be installed in your present refrigerator; and year in and year out you will have, right at your elbow, the crisp dry cold of the Zone of Kelvination.

There's a Kelvinator for every standard refrigerator made, your own included. You know, of course, that Kelvinator is the oldest electric refrigeration for the home and the recognized world's standard. Yet it costs less than other systems, size for size and quality for quality.

Just telephone or mail the coupon below and we will gladly furnish complete information about the proper Kelvinator for your home.

WHINE OF SAWS SINGS DIRGE FOR LUMBER QUEEN

Muskegon Career Among the Timber Barons.

This story and the next—Numbers 38 and 39 in The Tribune's Chicagoan pilgrimage—will try to unfold one of the most amazing dramas in the history of industrial America, a drama that was as deplorable in its beginnings as its end, so far as earnest men are concerned, seems to be a happy ending. It is the drama of the wrecking of a great area of Michigan by ruthless lumber barons and of the comeback effected by a different type of American business men.

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

In 1838 everybody in this town thought the timber barons were making money. In 1905 exhaustion had come. Muskegon was flat.

John Beukema's three sentences epitomized a grim story of insane industrial operations which chopped and sawed and whizzed and tore and burned through half of Michigan's forest in the nineteenth century and spilled wreckage and debris and ruin into the lap of this century for patient, sagacious men to pick up and sort out and make something of.

Data That Preach Sermon.

John Beukema, of Muskegon, sprung of the old Dutch pilgrim stock that for three-quarters of a century has provided a large part of the sustenance and savor of Chicago's Riviera, is one of those patient, sagacious men. To him, and to the abundant documents, old and new, which he loaned us, THE TRIBUNE is indebted for facts and figures and side lights of which nearly every item preaches a sermon fraught with admonition to American business men.

The first part of the industrial drama of Michigan's west shore was tragedy—the tragedy of rich-quick—the most ignoble tragedy there is; no grandeur in it.

The lumber barons cut timber from 1850 to the end of the last century not like business men but like madmen. Warning voices were raised. The barons mocked those voices, and with redoubled fury, and never reformed.

Even in this hour vast areas of Michigan lying between lakes Michigan and Huron and north of the valley of the Grand river are paying the penalty.

Paying for Heedless Past.

The commonwealth will continue to pay for decades.

In Michigan last year $4,000,000 trees were planted. That was more than were planted in all our federal forests, so John Beukema said.

The planting was done mostly in areas which the barons had cut down. More planting was done in Muskegon county than in any other county in the state. The people call these periods of community reforestation "planting bees" and make them occasions of both piety and festivity.

The barons wrought ruin with diabolical thoroughness. As their gangs cut and haul and haul and cut, pine trees 200 feet high, 6 feet in diameter near the base, and branches for the first 100 feet of height—they left the ground piled thick and high with branches. Sunlight constricted these leavings into tinder. Once a spark the tinder carried fire afar—far into uncut tracts.

Declared Timber Endless.

The barons cared not. They said the timber was inexhaustible, whatever happened.

These fires did more than destroy trees. They destroyed soil, burning every ounce of humus out of it. Today Sahara is fertile compared with some of that burned out Michigan soil.

U. S. PLANS TO SELL LIBERTY MOTORS TO BOOST AIR COMMERCE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Methods of encouraging commercial aviation were discussed at today's cabinet meeting. President Coolidge was keenly interested in the question, as were cabinet members whose departments are concerned with aviation, including Secretaries Hoover, Davis, Wilbur and New.

Consideration was given to a suggestion that the war department offer for sale at attractive terms surplus Liberty motors. It was stated that the department has from 10,000 to 12,000 of these motors, which were designed by American engineers during the war and still are regarded as of first class character.

President Coolidge made it clear that if the motors are offered for sale he does not desire that such action shall be injurious to the interests of private manufacturers. According to government officials, the manufacturing plants are not meeting the demand for motors at present and the sale of Liberty motors will not injure them.

But the get-rich-quick tragedy was a gorgeous delusion.

In the flush, flash days in Manistee—now pretty and prosperous city of Chicago's Riviera and gallantly coming back after desolate years—there were forty millionaires and the place was the richest city per capita in the Union.

History in the late '80s. Manistee was annually cutting 300,000,000 feet of lumber and making 700,000,000 shingles. Thirty-two lumber and shingle mills were going full tilt. But no reforestation was going on. Judge Thompson, the successful Ponce de Leon of Manistee, told me about those matters a few days ago.

Cash in Plenty, Taste Lacking.

All this while the barons were building sumptuous 20-room houses on which no money was spared and no taste bestowed. Many of these enormous structures have been pulled down; others are being converted into hospitals, tuberculosis sanatoria, and the like institutions.

Architecturally, culturally, and economically, almost none of the barons of the west coast left any legacy but tragedy; others are being converted into hospitals, tuberculosis sanatoria, and the like institutions.

The first part of the industrial drama of Michigan's west shore was tragedy—the tragedy of rich-quick—the most ignoble tragedy there is; no grandeur in it.

The lumber barons cut timber from 1850 to the end of the last century not like business men but like madmen. Warning voices were raised. The barons mocked those voices, and with redoubled fury, and never reformed.

The barons cared not. They said the timber was inexhaustible, whatever happened.

These fires did more than destroy trees. They destroyed soil, burning every ounce of humus out of it. Today Sahara is fertile compared with some of that burned out Michigan soil.

be guided by highly educated men. One result of his method was that Muskegon today is one of the thriving places of Michigan for the study of masterpieces of painting.

Some of the barons never really dwelt in the areas they so insensitively looted. One of those absentee barons lived—quite literally—like a hog—"used to wake up three times a day"—so venerable Justus Stearns of Ludington, Mich., told me last week—"and grunt like a hog. That meant that he wanted to be fed."

Never Heard of Public.

"Did he ever do anything for the region that was the source of his riches?" I asked.

For answer Mr. Stearns laughed dryly and said: "Will you have a cigar?"

Some of the barons were thieves, and their victims who had the spunk for arduous legal processes—like Mr. Vach of Detroit—had them arrested and wring restitution out of them.

Many of them, as Grady of Atlanta once said of Gen. Sherman, "were utterly careless with fire." When the timber of the owner of a sawmill was cut out the heavily insured mill would be abandoned. A few weeks or months later there would be a fire so mysterious that it would move the knowing ones along Muskegon's Western avenue to winking and laughter. The insurance on the burned mill would be cheerfully paid, for the rate was high. Such were the barons who had a breed on which the robber barons of the Rhine had nothing.

Kept Lights Turned Low.

In their defense it has been said that they "acted according to their lights." They did. But they hadn't any lights. Shrewd as they were in estimating what a section of pine forest would cut up into, they had no genuine vision and no regard for the rights of generations unborn.

They believed and frequently obliged and burned and lay waste as long as they lived. As for the unborn, they could pay the bill. They are born now—and they are paying all right.

In a curious specimen of the early go-getter literature of Chicago—a volume entitled "Muskegon and Its Resources," published in 1884, which trustful John Beukema has loaned me—I find this passage under the heading "Timber Supply":

"Twenty years ago old croakers said, 'Five or ten years will exhaust the timber supply of Muskegon.' They have said the same thing every year from that time to this until their prophecies are now considered as reliable as those of the ordinary weather prophet. While these predictions have been indulged in, the lumber cut has increased, year after year, until it has grown from an annual product of a few hundred thousand feet to as many hundred millions, and still the supply is very far from being exhausted, and many of the most valuable timbers of the region, especially hardwoods, are practically almost untouched, and the timber prophet of today who lives long enough to see the supply exhausted in the Muskegon valley will be so writhed that he can wrap himself up in a linen rag and be labeled, 'a well preserved specimen of Egyptian mummy' without danger of detection."

Croakers vs. Go-Getters.

Note the dates: The meek at the "old croakers" is dated 1884; their prophecy was to have come true in 1874. Ten years had passed, and it had not come true.

Hence laughter and gibes.

Past that, twenty more years passed and the prophecy came true with a crash that nearly broke the hearts of strong men.

And that brings us to the next act of the happy and of this strange industrial drama of Michigan.

Joseph Conrad Not a Genius at Being Popular with Wife

By Sidney Dark.

(Special Critic.)

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—If no man is a hero to his valet, it would seem to be equally true that no author is a genius to his wife, to judge from Mrs. Jessie Conrad's recent published recollections of her famous husband, which have just been published.

Conrad was sometimes "difficult" by those who knew him slightly; and he must sometimes have been difficult to live with. Indeed, it would seem to give our thanks for Conrad's masterpieces should go to the wife who humoured his idiosyncrasies, like writing in the conservatory, "draped in a yellow striped bath robe"—or if the mood took him, in the bathroom. And how many potentially happy marriages have not been wrecked by cigarette burns on table cloths and bed sheets? But this habit, too, Mrs. Conrad tolerated, even if she was sometimes moved to protest.

One burning question must have been his habit of going to sleep while reading in bed by candlelight, so that Mrs. Conrad would be awakened suddenly by the flare of the book he had been reading, the pages of which had caught the flame of the candle beside him.

Since the appearance of her book Mrs. Conrad has been induced to give to the readers of a London Sunday newspaper some hints, out of her own experience, on the way to manage a genius. Any girl who thinks of marrying a genius may be saved some heartaches by pondering one great truth which Mrs. Conrad has discovered.

"A man whose creative work is destined to stand out in the world, becomes absorbed and frequently oblivious to the claims of his wife or friends upon his attention. This does not mean any loss of affection or indifference, and there is hardly a man, a novelist, who would not be deeply wounded by the mere suggestion. Yet without a writer, and next to him a musician, unconsciously becomes more and more absorbed by his thoughts, and as time goes on less and less aware that the home contains another being whose mere presence he has taken for granted. This is not a cause for reproaches, for tears or scenes, or, too often, alas, for resentment. The wife who indulges herself in this manner is spoiling the concentrated thoughts of months, robbing the world of at least one masterpiece."

John Galsworthy's "The Silver Spoon" has been published here a day or two before the advertised date for the issue of H. G. Wells' "The World of William Clissold," and it has thus had the first of the autumn's serious criticisms. There is no decadence in Galsworthy's craftsmanship, and he has never written a more effective novel, but he is still too young to have attained the serenity of old age, and he has got into the mood common enough with men arriving at their sixties, of cynical disillusionment when everything seems for the worst in this world of all possible worlds. He is obsessed with the Forsyte family. He is indeed more interested in the Forsytes than in any of his readers can possibly hope to be.

"Sorrell and Son" Is Great Success; Praise from Every Quarter

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"Sorrell and Son" has been one of the most discussed novels of the year. Its admirers and those who cannot beam upon it are equally vehement. It has been, without any special tutoring on the part of anybody, a great success. It is a best seller of the most tenacious kind. Many readers say that it is the best novel they have read this year. It had an excellent press in some of the journals of England.

In one day two discriminating, sophisticated readers said these divergent things about it. The first, a woman of charm and taste said that she had enjoyed it and "The Housemaid" better than any other two books this year. The other, a doctor of distinction and brilliance, said that he thought it the last of the Elsie Dinmore series. There you are. Which one is right?

New Hergesheimer Novel, "Tampico," Is Powerful Book

By Fanny Butcher.

"Tampico," by Joseph Hergesheimer (Knopf).

The publication of a new Joseph Hergesheimer novel is always a great moment for the expert.

For the lay reader there is always an excellent story teller, a writer of distinction, and a story sure to give them their money's worth at least.

For the critic there is the possible thrill of his having done a new Hergesheimer.

For the reader of "Three Black Pennys," the possibility of another "Java Head," the possibility that he has leaped a generation in the family tree of his work, the excitement of having the novel turn out to be the exact child of the parent that preceded it.

"Tampico" had before its publication all of those thrills to those of us who have to look for the concrete bases of the gorgeous towers that leap up above the heads of most of the domestic literary architecture. Now that it has been read it has a brand new thrill, for not only is it a product of all that Hergesheimer has ever done before, and thus obviously, not like "The Bright Shawl," or even "Cytherea," something of a tale told with the left hand, but a serious and important addition to the creative work of Hergesheimer.

First of all, "Tampico" seems, on the face of it, anything but a typical Hergesheimer. It is a melodrama before it is anything else, a tale told and languid with the air of the tropics, a tale of fierce and sudden passions and as fierce and sudden changes of emotion. It is a tale of gigantic scheming. It is the story of oil in Mexico. And it is profoundly the tale of the viscid grip of malaria. I am not at all sure that when time has settled all of the grounds of the book, the real sediment won't prove to be just that, a really vivid and vividly real picture of the ironic power of the tropics over man, the shattering of his futile strength by

JOSEPH HERGESHEIMER.

For that reason, alone, "Tampico" is not the typical Hergesheimer. It is rather the typical Conrad, for no one else has done exactly that thing like Conrad, and never before has Hergesheimer ventured into the field of the power of fate, working through a physical state, and insidiously undermining even the strongest of men. There are pages and pages which, though without the magic of Conrad, might have been written by him, which sound as if they had been and had not been that eternal revision and polishing that made Conrad one of the great masters of English. The quality of magic is not in "Tampico," and yet that quality of the five senses of man's thrills and revelations is strangely absent in "Tampico," or perhaps the reactions of the senses seem of little importance in comparison with the reactions of the mind to their fate. At any rate, there is nothing in "Tampico" conspicuously five senses like the description of the Chinese wife in "Java Head," the composite of the rich colorings and weaves and textures and fragrances and flowing lines and perfect art of that strange and exotic creature.

You smiled, you saw, touched, you heard the rich but faint rustle of those silks stiff with beauty. You tasted the acridness of western life as it touched those perfectly artificial lips. "Tampico" has little to do with the subtleties of the senses. It is a passionate story of his gestures, the story of the greatest oil man in Mexico conquered by malaria, daring to the insidiousness of the fever.

For that reason, alone, "Tampico" is not the typical Hergesheimer. It is rather the typical Conrad, for no one else has done exactly that thing like Conrad, and never before has Hergesheimer ventured into the field of the power of fate, working through a physical state, and insidiously undermining even the strongest of men. There are pages and pages which, though without the magic of Conrad, might have been written by him, which sound as if they had been and had not been that eternal revision and polishing that made Conrad one of the great masters of English. The quality of magic is not in "Tampico," and yet that quality of the five senses of man's thrills and revelations is strangely absent in "Tampico," or perhaps the reactions of the senses seem of little importance in comparison with the reactions of the mind to their fate. At any rate, there is nothing in "Tampico" conspicuously five senses like the description of the Chinese wife in "Java Head," the composite of the rich colorings and weaves and textures and fragrances and flowing lines and perfect art of that strange and exotic creature.

You smiled, you saw, touched, you heard the rich but faint rustle of those silks stiff with beauty. You tasted the acridness of western life as it touched those perfectly artificial lips. "Tampico" has little to do with the subtleties of the senses. It is a passionate story of his gestures, the story of the greatest oil man in Mexico conquered by malaria, daring to go back to get the woman he loved, and the complete conquest which defied fate gave him.

It has more of the powerful reality of "The Three Black Pennys" than anything Hergesheimer has written since then, and yet it also has that new quality of melodrama, which is a new Hergesheimer. "Cytherea" was melodrama in one sense, "The Bright Shawl" was in every sense. They are the natural parents of "Tampico," in that sense. But their child has something sturdier, more elemental, more real than its parents.

I do not mean to say that I think "Tampico" Hergesheimer's greatest book. I mean merely to say that it is a growth, a natural one and not, like the three novels which preceded it, merely offshoots.

The ordinary reader will like it because it is a thriller. And the author has done his thrilling subtly—as he does when he suggests that a man would be better off of the way and the next day he is presented with the man's ear as a receipt, as it were. The ordinary reader will like the heroine. There is something decadent about the cold, self-sufficient, too modern woman that belies all of her freedom and so-called "honesty." And the heroine of "Tampico" is as real in her final gesture of lying and repudiating the man she had loved as Iris March was unreal in her gesture of saving herself and the man she loved by her spectacular death.

"Tampico" will certainly give you a thrill. And it will give you many more things to talk about than I have mentioned, a chance, for instance, to argue at length about the presence of American capital in Mexico and its use and abuse, and other international affairs. And no two readers will agree about the hero and the heroine and their qualities.

"On to Oregon" Tells Story of Boy with Courage and Nobility

"On to Oregon," by Honoré Willie Morrow. (Morrow.)

One of the few books lately that have made any attempt to picture nobility of character is Honoré Willie Morrow's, "We Must March," which was published last year. It is supposed to be something a little old-fashioned to be really and fundamentally noble—not noble with a gesture, but just decent because there is an inner urge to honesty and fineness. The heroine of "We Must March" was a great woman, and it touched something in oneself to read about her, and to know that she lived just as actually as you and I live today.

The work which Mrs. Morrow put upon that historical novel stood her in good stead for the writing of "On to Oregon," the story of John Sager, whom you remember from "We Must March." He was a boy no different from Smitty and the youngsters of the modern comics—just a boy with no great brilliancies—but his courage was tremendous, and passionate, and vivid. Mrs. Morrow tells his story for young people, but it is a story which will put heart into the readers of the flapper school of fiction. Boys, in the case of John Sager, were noble men in parvo.

In all the chronicles of man's search for

Harriet Monroe, Who Knows All Poets,
Publishes Essays

"Poets and Their Art," by Harriet Monroe. [Macmillan.] No one in America today knows more about poets than does Harriet Monroe. As editor of Poetry, a Magazine of Verse, through whose pages have passed the most representative and the most thrilling and the most impressive of the poets writing in the English language, she has come in contact personally and spiritually with them all. For years one of the most delightful pages of Poetry has been sure to be the editor's own page. It is the essays from Poetry that she has gathered together in this delightful volume—together with an essay or two which were printed elsewhere. The uninitiated will find in "Poets and Their Art" as good a justification of the art of poetry as I know of anywhere—if they require it. The poets themselves will find inspiration.

Historical Letters of Washington's Period Are Put in Book Form

"They Knew the Washingtons," translated by the Princess Radetsky. [Bobbs, Merrill.]

A volume of very pleasant letters from a French soldier with Lafayette and his family in Virginia is "They Knew the Washingtons." The letters are the really honey ones that men and women took time to write in the days when a letter was an event. They tell of the life in Virginia of the expatriates, of the gossip of the times, of the affairs of state as well as of family. Their authenticity is vouched for by the translator, who says that they were part of the accumulated archives of her family. The publishers prefix a note which says, "Historical authorities who read these letters may differ as to their authenticity. But they are so vivid and present such an interesting picture of the Washingtons and the events of the period that we think they are worthy of publication, if only for their literary merit."

AND THEN CAME SPRING

by John Hargrave

Mr. Godwin Birtwhistle, wealthy, respectable business man, comfortably married, his children grown, went down to London on a business trip—and there he drank some brandies, and stepped out with the boys, and began to feel the gaiety of youth again when he met

an alluring red-lipped lady

Leeta, a young war widow of expensive tastes, a gay and sad little person who needed money badly.

Heigho! A much enacted drama, this serio-comic playlet of the masculine menopause, of the aging heart. And John Hargrave sets it down with sparkling humor, with vast understanding and compassion for both Leeta and Godwin, with profound sense of the values of human life.

"Invaluable to the business man," says Bernard M. Baruch

"Some one asked me if I had read Mark Sullivan's book, 'Our Times'; so I took up the volume one Sunday morning and became so much interested that I continued with it all day. I felt as if there were before me a moving picture of all the events, the outstanding individuals, and the life of the average American during the turn of the Twentieth Century. Not alone does it hold one's interest, but it makes it easier to understand what is taking place to-day. To the business man and the student who wishes a clearer understanding of his 'to-day' by a better interpretation of his 'yesterday,' the book is invaluable."

Soames Forsyte in Chicago!

Almost any day now you might chance to encounter him, taking the fine September air on Michigan Avenue, or looking down his nose at the paintings in the Art Institute. Let's see—Michael was to meet Fleur and Soames in Vancouver at the end of August, on the last lap of their trip around the world. Traveling leisurely eastward, with an occasional stop, they would probably get to Chicago about—

Absurd? Yes, perhaps. And yet, not so very absurd. For Soames Forsyte is virtually flesh and blood. As a prominent London critic puts it: "When it gets to such a pitch as this, a novelist's characters cease to be fictitious and become real beings. How can anybody whom thousands know well be called imaginary?"

Soames Forsyte might well be called the world's best known Englishman, for hundreds of thousands of people know him intimately—his acquaintances girdle the globe. He is the dominating figure in a new novel which, in the two months since it was published has sold more than a hundred thousand copies in America alone—not to mention England, Australia, South Africa, etc. Inquire at any bookstore or newstand for a copy of

Eskimos Confess Slaying
Marvin, Perry's Aid.

we could say nothing but good of him. Not a single hard word ever came from him. He was a clever man, a fine traveler, and always good tempered and liked by the Eskimos. Up to then he never got angry."

Left Facing Cruel Death.

"That," continued the Eskimo, Harrigan, "is why we were frightened. It was not our good Marvin at all. It was a different man. We felt that he was so worn out he did not know what he was doing. He was out of his mind. Otherwise, he never would have left me facing a cruel death."

Let Harrigan tell his own story. It is here, as told by him to Dr. Rasmussen on a hillside back of Karnah in August, when we were there, looking out over the sound and the gleaming glaciers and the interminable ice cap—the encompassing world of these two Eskimos. The pathos of it is in Kudlooktoo's words to Harrigan:

"I have done this to save your life. What happened is not our fault. It will be hard for the white men to understand, and if you tell they will kill us or take us to the white man's country."

All Were Worn Out.

"We were all very tired and worn out," Harrigan said, as Rasmussen drew the complete story from him, later to set it down, translated as exactly as possible from the Eskimo phrases. "Behind us were many, many days of hard travel, always in rough ice and very cold weather. We never saw land, only ice, ice. The white men told us that we got enough to eat because we got the pemmican we needed, but in spite of that we were always hungry. It seemed as if our stomachs were always empty."

[Editor's note—The Eskimo normally eats much meat and keeps his stomach full and often nearly distended. Pemmican is very succulent.]

"But worst of all, we always seemed thirsty. We never got water to drink. Because the fuel with which to melt the snow was limited. The only thing we had to drink was a cup of tea with each meal. And we, who drink so much water, often chose to put snow in the hot tea so that there would be more to drink."

Difficult to Keep Going.

"Our dogs were very tired and it was difficult to keep them going, even though the sleds were not heavy. Every day we were looking for old sled tracks. As soon as we were able to follow them we did not need to cut our way through the rough ice. At many places the ice was very high and we could not get through. We were the next to the last party which had been supporting Perry on his way north. Between us and Perry was another party under the leadership of Capt. Bartlett. We were on our home trail after our farthest north."

"On the third day we stopped the team and I started to untangle the traces of the dogs while Marvin and Kudlooktoo went ahead to look for the best way. As soon as I was through with the traces I went after them, following their tracks. But a short distance ahead their tracks separated. I was uncertain which track to follow. After a while I took Kudlooktoo's track."

"As soon as I caught up with Kudlooktoo we stopped and kept looking for Marvin. After some waiting we saw him coming. As soon as he came up to us we saw that he was very excited and quite out of balance. He waved his clenched fist right up in my face and yelled at me. We stood silent and couldn't understand him. He was never that way before."

Orders Harrigan to Leave.

"He was like a sane man who for the moment was without the use of his faculties. Suddenly he yelled that he couldn't bear to see me around any more."

more. He would not have me in the party any longer. I must go my own way, since I would not follow his tracks. He ordered that all my clothes be left there. He undid the lashings on the sled and threw my clothes on the ice. But there were no provisions left for me."

"Then they started. Marvin was not himself at all. Kudlooktoo told me later that Marvin kept on talking and yelling all the way. He said that I should not be allowed to come into the snow house when they camped, and that I should have nothing to eat and nothing to drink, even after we got to land. [Cape Columbia, where they had a cache of provisions.]

"Kudlooktoo understood, as he later told me, that if I did not starve or freeze to death I would perish of thirst. Thirst is, as you know, the worst thing for us."

Knew Marvin Was Insane.

"It was evident to Kudlooktoo that now Marvin did not know what he was doing, and it was impossible to try to speak to him. Kudlooktoo was so distressed that he could not stand it, and his tears were running all the way as he drove the dogs."

"I stood on the ice, puzzled as to what I should do. All this had happened so suddenly. Part of my clothes that were left on the ice were wet and because it was impossible for me to dry them I took with me only a pair of kamiks [shoes]. The day was very cold and I couldn't stand still long on the ice."

"Then I followed after the other two. During the afternoon we came to open water. I saw the sled was stopped there and Marvin and Kudlooktoo had gone ahead to find a place to get over. While they were away I reached the sled. I didn't dare to go after them, because I was frightened of Marvin. I just dropped down on the sled without thinking what next might happen."

"While I was sitting there I saw Kudlooktoo on a big piece of rough ice and he yelled to me that I should bring him his rifle. He had seen a seal in the open water. I brought him his rifle and went back again to the sled. I heard a shot a moment later and expected that Kudlooktoo had shot the seal. But right away he came over to me and told me what had happened. He had shot Marvin in order to save my life."

Harrigan explained that, actually, there was no seal but Kudlooktoo had wished to keep Marvin's attention occupled.

"And Kudlooktoo," he continued, "then explained the following to me: 'You know that what I have done was for you. In return I ask you not to betray me. It will be hard for the white men to understand our position. If we tell the truth they will make us responsible for Marvin's death and they will kill us in return or take us to the white man's country. What happened today is not our own fault—we didn't start it.'

Fix Up False Story.

"What we must do is tell as soon as we reach the ship that Marvin drowned while he was trying to get over a lead. If you tell that I killed him you will betray me. Because I have done this in order to save your life. I want you to know that if you desert me I will get my revenge by killing you also."

"Marvin was shot just behind the ear and killed instantly. We took the body out in the lead, where the ice would cover him, and wiped out all tracks. After that we left the place, the lead being covered with young ice, and we saw land. Four days later we reached the ship and told them that Marvin was drowned trying to cross a lead and they believed the story."

2 YANK GUNNERS WITH NICARAGUA REBELS KILLED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two Americans who were operating machine guns with the revolutionists were killed in the battle Tuesday near El Bluff between Chamorro government forces and revolutionists, according to a telegram received from W. J. Crampton, the United States collector of customs at El Bluff. Mr. Crampton says one German gunner died in the fighting at Rama.

More than eighty rebels were killed in the El Bluff fight. Many were wounded. Bluefields is short of food, but provisions landed from the steamer Dictator will avert a famine. American marines have landed at El Bluff, following the signing of an armistice by the government and the rebels.

BLACK BUTTERFLIES

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Johnny Owen Hatch renews acquaintance with his client, Dorinda Maxwell, for living alone in her house since the death of her parents six months before and for associating with the disreputable band known as BLACK BUTTERFLIES. She replies that she will not give up the freedom that was denied her during her father's lifetime.

Hatch, under David Goddard, his clerk, out to Dorinda's house with some papers that bore his signature. Three of the Butterflies are in the house and Dorinda asks Goddard to wait one of them, Chad Bailey, home, as he is too drunk to leave the house alone.

INSTALLMENT VII.

AN IMPERTINENT REPORT.

Bayley had no desire to put on his hat and coat. He dropped into a chair and good humoredly but with surprising firmness pushed the garments away.

"Go 'long," he protested. "What idea? Daysh young."

Chad blinked under the crisp order, but sat still.

"Shay," he began.

He was on his feet, his hat and coat were on, he was propelled rapidly toward the door.

"If you will bring the reader to the side entrance," Goddard told Dorinda over his shoulder, "I'll put him into it."

There was a slight delay in the appearance of the car which Bayley fled with conversation. It developed that his opinion of Goddard was not and had never been really high. He recalled that the model young man had some faults, which he mentioned. He was also inclined to be critical of persons who turned gentlemen out into storm.

He dwelt so earnestly on his grievances, and indulged so freely in gesture and clutches that Goddard finally tied his arms behind him and fastened a silk handkerchief over his mouth, above which his goggling eyes blinked amazedly.

Dorinda, appearing at the side door with the reader, found Goddard controlling her trussed guest with one arm, while Mr. Bryant and Miss Perkins, seated side by side on the lowest step of the stairs leading from the

"Mr. Goddard has gone, miss."

she wanders to the side driveway and reclining heavily on each other's shoulders, alternated in advice and rousing cheers. Goddard greeted her expression with a relief natural in these conditions.

"Can you keep him in and drive, too?" she anxiously inquired. "If you could sit up straight he could help, but as it is he would only be another burden. Perhaps I'd better go along."

The new model young man was by this time somewhat on the edge of his nerves, which perhaps condones the fact that his reply lacked polish.

"Doing," he said brusquely. He tossed the trussed figure of Mr. Bayley into the reader as if it had been a bag of meal, and as he rubbed his wheel he added his vaudeville. "If I couldn't manage that scoundrel with one hand," he said, "I'd put on petticoats."

The next instant the reader whirled down the driveway, the sound of its departure nicely accented by a final cheer from the appreciative Miss Perkins and Mr. Bryant.

Half an hour later, Annie, Miss Maxwell's waitress, entered the library where her mistress sat alone.

"The reader came back, miss," she reported.

"Good. Ask Mr. Goddard to come in."

"Mr. Goddard has gone, miss."

"Good. Dorinda turned to look at her in surprise. "But I told you I wanted to see him," she reminded the maid.

"Yes, miss. I told Mr. Goddard that, but he was in a hurry to get back to his office."

"What did he say?"

"He left his apologies, miss—an' regrets."

"Did he say anything else?"

"Yes, miss, but only to me, personal like."

"What was it?"

Annie hesitated, but she was young and there were few bright spots in her life. Moreover, being herself a conventional maiden, she did not approve of Miss Maxwell's goings on, and was seriously thinking of throwing up her situation. Both these considerations dictated her truthful reply.

"He said, miss," she primly reported, "that he had wasted more time on you than he could afford."

At sight of the scowl which flooded her mistress' face Annie's heart recoiled.

"I'm sorry, miss," she hastily added, "but you made me tell. An' of course the young man never thought I'd be passin' it on."

"All right, Annie. Have Mr. Bryant and Miss Perkins really left?"

"Yes, miss; they went the last time ten minutes ago, cheerin' and helping each other down the driveway, with all the neighbors lookin' out the windows at them," Annie modestly submitted, "and they ain't come back. So the time I guess they're gone for good."

"I'll wager the neighbors were lookin' at you," Dorinda sighed. Her thoughts returned to her late guests. "The stretches," she murmured forgivingly.

"They said they were too stiff to move, but it was only an excuse. What they wanted was to stay on and drink themselves into a deeper stupor. They all, Annie," she hastily added, remembering the waiting maid, "I'll have a note ready in five minutes. Come then and get it, and have Johnny take it to Mr. Goddard's office."

When Annie had left the room Dorinda went over to her father's colonial writing desk and sat down before it. She had not yet lost the sense of amazement that from the first had accompanied this simple action. If her father's sacred desk, where he kept his sacred papers and his sacred accounts, of them so much more sacred to him than his wife and daughter! If there was a next world and Horace Maxwell had a place in it and could look back on this one, Dorinda reflected, he would have his purgatory in any one else at that desk.

She seized a shabby writing paper she now used—deep creased with a black butterfly across the top—and wrote rapidly:

"Miss Maxwell realizes with regret that today Mr. Goddard gave her more of his time than he could afford. She therefore incloses her check for twenty-five dollars in payment, and begs Mr. Goddard to accept it with her thanks."

"There won't be an answer," she told Annie, with a complacent smile, "the girl returned for the note. To herself she added, 'That will teach the lesson!'"

But there was an answer, and Johnny, the boy of all work, brought it to her within the next hour. As Dorinda opened it her cheek dropped over the envelope to the floor. The note read:

"Dear Miss Maxwell:

Of course I can't accept your check. The little I did was not in the line of my office activities, so there is no fee.

If there were a charge, by the way, it would have to be made by Hatch, Fuller & Kimball. And how the deuce would they bill it?

Sincerely yours,

DAVID GODDARD.

The impetuosity of that Dorinda set her teeth and threw the note into a fire that seemed very little hotter than her own angry face.

She was furious, but when her rage had cooled there was satisfaction in knowing that she had made Goddard furious, too. The pregnant phrase of "the lesson" returned to her.

The little I did was not in the line of my office activities. Impertinence! And yet, of course, he was right. A lawyer's clerk was not supposed to be a client to be signed does not expect to run into a lawless house party, or to be asked to take charge of a young set not to be looked after himself. Chad was a dear boy, but he had been a nuisance

He was rarely wholly sober, and frequently he was wholly drunk. He had been this afternoon when he clearly felt that his supposed injuries were no good an excuse. Not that Chad needed any excuse, at any time. Mr. Bryant had been a nuisance, too. Even Kitty was sometimes a nuisance.

He thought of his marvelous music. It was one thing to have a good time at night, but to have thoughts continued, with the house lit up and dance music going

It was quite another thing to have an intoxicated group under one's feet in the morning in various stages of dress and undress, and to have guests down her driveway and out of her entrance gates in broad daylight.

GASOLINE ALLEY—OFF TO A NEW START

School Finance Audit Is Asked by Teachers

Doubt Expressed Board Faces Crisis.

School economy, taking the form of reducing the teaching staff and elimination of technical equipment, was scored yesterday afternoon by the Women's Federation of High School Teachers and in the evening by Chicago Federation of Men Teachers at the City club and by parents of Lake View high school students at Lake View.

The women teachers expressed themselves as skeptical of the seriousness of the crisis and adopted a resolution asking the city council to investigate the condition of the school's finances. They also expressed alarm at the opinion of Frank Righelmer, attorney for the board of education, that teachers for whom there were no positions need not be retained by the board according to the tenure of office ruling under the civil service law.

The question of the cultural value of technical courses was brought up at the meeting. The teachers all were convinced that the manual training subjects brighten the course of study for the pupils and help to lift them over the otherwise more difficult and to them, less interesting subjects.

William J. Bogan, assistant superintendent, appeared at the meeting of the men teachers to explain the board's position. He said the educational department was being used as a buffer between the board and the teachers.

"Without the knowledge of the educational department," Mr. Bogan said, "the investigation of the need for technical subjects in the high schools was conducted by the board."

The results were startling. It was revealed that the average cost per pupil for certain of the applied arts was in the case of academic high schools three or four times that in the regular technical high schools.

Mr. Bogan denied that anything of cultural value had been removed. He said he realized that there was perhaps no greater cultural subjects than some of the applied arts courses, but that pottery, jewelry, auto mechanics, and stagecraft were not included in this list. He said there weren't five schools in the country that offered such courses.

Mr. Bogan could not assure the teachers that those who were without employment because of the retrenchment measures of the board would not be dismissed, but he said that so far no

The parents who met at Lake View declared the board's action was false economy. The case of the Lake View auto shop, with 105 students there, being removed to Wendell Phillips High, where there are only 47 students, was cited as being unfair and wasteful.

Carl R. Roden Marks 40 Years' Service in Public Library Today

Carl R. Roden, head librarian of the Chicago Public Library, when he arrives at his office this morning he will find forty roses, one for each of the forty years of service with the library, which he completes today.

Mr. Roden entered the service in 1886, when the library was located on the eighth floor of the City hall, and had a collection of only 111,000 volumes. He has seen the organization grow until today the library contains 1,402,000 books.

Mr. Roden said yesterday the great development in the library field in the last forty years has been the decentralization. With the program of building branches throughout the city and in the outlying districts the library is being taken to the people, whereas before they had to come to it, Mr. Roden said.

Mr. Roden's first employment in the library was as a page. He advanced through the ranks until in 1909 he was made assistant to the librarian, Henry E. Lester. When Mr. Lester died in 1917, Mr. Roden succeeded to the position.

Each of the more than 100 branches of the library is now a modern school.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the same order will dedicate its new $750,000 hospital for the free treatment of crippled children, located at Oak Park and Belden avenues.

The Medinah club cost a total of more than $3,000,000. The elaborate building, like most shrine structures, is in the Moorish style and has ornamental towers and minarets that make it unique among local clubhouses.

An automobile parade is to be held from Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets, to the club grounds. There the Medinah temple band and other uniformed bodies will gather and a review will be held, with Imperial Potentate David W. Crossland and his staff in the inspectors' stand. There will be dancing during the remainder of the afternoon and in the evening a reception and ball will be held in the grand ballroom. Miss Marjorie Canode with Carl Schmidt will lead the grand march.

Officers of the club are Charles H. Canode, president; Theodore R. Heiman, vice president; W. S. Barbee, secretary, and F. N. Peck, treasurer.

A parade is also to precede the dedication of the hospital. As for the Medinah temple, it is the intention of the city of Chicago, Mayor Dever, who will be accompanied by his department heads, will accept the gift.

No paying patients are to be at the hospital. It will be open to children from 2 to 14 years old whose parents are not able to afford treatment for them.

William H. Wade is chairman of the committee that had charge of the building and will remain in active administration of the hospital.

A chain of nine hospitals has been built by Shriners in various parts of the country," he said. "This one, like the others, will be supported by our members. Each member of the order pays $2 annually to the building and maintenance fund, a total of $1,500,000 every twelve months."

Edison All Wrong,
Radio Is All Right,
Its Queen Asserts

Princeton, Ill., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—"Thomas A. Edison doesn't know what he's talking about when he says radio is no good," declared Mrs. Lotta Harrauff, chosen queen of radio for the coming year, in her home here to-night. Mrs. Harrauff has just returned from the radio world's fair in New York.

She said she spoke in behalf of 10,000,000 women radio listeners in the United States in denying the inventor's claim that the great indoor sport is waning in popularity and that the music broadcast is "awful."

"Mr. Edison is entirely wrong," she asserted. "Let him visit the farms if he wants to learn the blessings of radio and particularly what it means to the women. It is accomplishing a world of good. He says radio music is bad. I say it is getting better all the time."

Mrs. Harrauff will broadcast a further reply to the inventor from the Chicago radio show on Oct. 11, she announced.

Shriners to Dedicate Club and Hospital

Ceremonies Take Place
Today and Tomorrow.

The new Medinah Country club, promoted and built by members of the

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Fish Cookery.

After a week given to rather intemperate attention to fish in many places what has been the total gain? I do not know. Whether forcing one's interest by considering fish hors d'oeuvres, fish soups, "poisons" in every way, including salads and other "cold suggestions" for them, for many people is worth while or not for one who wants to know and tell is a question. But a seeming conclusion is that fish is well cooked by highly trained cooks while by other sorts the business is an extremely haphazard one.

As one looks at a list including soups, fish, suppers, puddings, dainties, and fish, and frog's legs (Provencal), one realizes that fish is highly essential to all sophisticated menus. By the way, in trying to get some shade or shading on the subject of different sauces a nice waiter explained to me that Provencal was a sauce made out of a little tomato, a little garlic and a little parsley. It was suitable for him to emphasize little, by repetition, for true sauces are such as are served by the spoonful and not by the pint.

To complete the idea that fish cookery of the greatest perfection and interest is sophisticated, one had but to note a fish sauce with almonds in it, and when there were such tags as Armagnac and Aligot, one's convictions about sophisticated manipulations of fish were highly confirmed.

And yet, and yet again, if we would imitate the highest and best fish dishes instead of the old commonplaces we would surely become better fish cooks. We may not long for terrapin, nor green turtle soup Almondado, and yet if we can make a souffle of meat, vegetables, cheese, fruit or macaroons we can make one of fish, and have it an elegant product. What used to be called fish hushers when mounted on a round of toast and garnished with a piping may be called a canape, but if we want to introduce a nice little dinner here is something within the home cook's ability. Fish really lends itself to interesting fancy work.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK, by Jane Eddington, with menus for thirty meals and with chapters making a brief guide to correct eating, is on sale for 10 cents by mail or at the Public Service Office, 11 South Dearborn street.

Mrs. Charles B. Pike's Map-of-Paris Scarf Wins Admiration

BY NANCY R.

Although fads and fashions have a habit of coming and going, the latest thing from the fashion world is the map of Paris. It is a scarf, whose chief is the topic of no comment just now.

It is an intriguing scarf, and quite the latest thing from the fashion world. It is a scarf, whose chief is the topic of no comment just now.

A wide, sky blue scarf winds its way down the middle, on either side of which are faithfully depicted the boulevards and places, the highways and byways of that most fascinating of cities. It would be no false accusation to say that the scarf is a masterpiece of the weaver of the scarf to say that "she is simply wrapped up in Paris."

We had a brief call from two erstwhile Chicagoites the other day, the junior Joseph Colemans, who stopped off for a moment's visit en route from France to California. Many of their friends were disappointed not to see them, but they'll have a chance in a few weeks, for I understand this popular pair is returning to our Windy city in November for a fortnight's stay.

Among homecomings, I'm happy to be able to pass on the news that Mrs. Russell Matthews has changed her mind about not spending any time here before she sails with her husband on a long European cruise early in December. She expects to reach Chicago the second week in October—just how long she'll be here is still undecided.

Day's News in Society

Miss Betty Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall of 219 Lake Shore drive, who is to be married on Oct. 20 to Richard Hill Fleming, has selected her bridal retinue. It will include Mrs. Edward L. Brashers and Mrs. James M. Brashers as bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Marshall as maid of honor, and as bridesmaids, Miss Jane Schuttler, Miss Alice Hanson, and Miss Virginia Voss. Harvey Fleming is to be best man for his brother, and Benjamin Marshall Jr., Edward L. Brashers, James M. Brashers, and Louis Walton are to usher. The service is to be read at 3 o'clock at the Marshall studio in Evanston, and will be followed by a reception at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Miriel Clay Payne, daughter of Mrs. Harry Payne of Highland Park, has selected Oct. 16 for her wedding to Charles Ansel Watrous of New Haven, Conn. The service is to be read at 3 o'clock at the Trinity church in Highland Park. There will be only a few guests who will attend the ceremony and the reception following at the Moraine house. Miss Elizabeth Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Payne, is to be maid of honor, and Miss Catherine Hill of Boston, Mass., is to be the bridesmaid. The bride has not heard from her fiancé as to his selection of best men and ushers.

The Flag Creek Hunt club, that organization of young squabblers in which has been fostered by the Hamilton girls, Katherine, Emily, and Frances, is to hold its annual picnic on the Robert W. Hamilton farm this afternoon. The picnic is to be held at the Hamilton farm, and will be the last of the active participants, as the club will be dissolved after the picnic. The picnic is to be held at the Hamilton farm, and will be the last of the active participants, as the club will be dissolved after the picnic.

Mrs. David Dangler of Lake Forest is to open her residence on Friday, Oct. 1, for a sale for the first time. The sale is to be held at the Dangler residence, and will be the last of the active participants, as the club will be dissolved after the picnic. The picnic is to be held at the Hamilton farm, and will be the last of the active participants, as the club will be dissolved after the picnic.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Williamson of 1817 Dearborn parkway, their daughter, Miss Betty Williamson, and her fiancé, Miss Louise Donohoe, landed in New York City on Saturday and arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon. They are to be married on Oct. 22, and will be the last of the active participants, as the club will be dissolved after the picnic.

The George William Fitzgerald of 1817 Dearborn parkway, their daughter, Miss Betty Williamson, and her fiancé, Miss Louise Donohoe, landed in New York City on Saturday and arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon. They are to be married on Oct. 22, and will be the last of the active participants, as the club will be dissolved after the picnic.

Here's Some Oil to Throw on the Waters of Family Squabbles

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A young matron, concerned about the young couples who have to live with mother until they get on their feet financially, offers the following advice on how to avoid the common pitfalls.

"I realize it is a bad beginning not to start out on one's own, but there are instances when it is practically impossible," she writes. "It was in my case. But that does not mean you cannot be happy in spite of all that is said about no roof being large enough for two families."

Family squabbles, urges the experienced one, are to be avoided like the plague—the sort of squabbles you used to join in with vigorous delight in the old days. If it means escaping to another room, do it. Because if you get mixed up in the fray, some member of the family is sure to turn on you sooner or later with a few sisterly home truths. If husband feels compelled to defend you, which he naturally will, it will end in a bitter little passage.

When relations by marriage are dragged into these family "discussions" there is not the same easy and quick forgetfulness of what is said in a heated moment as there is in squabbles between "family."

"I have noticed with one girl friend in the same situation as myself," the young matron continues, "that she believed because she was married and her husband was contributing a certain amount of 'board' for her she felt it was not expected of her to take part in any of the family tasks. But if there were any extra pleasures contributed out of the family exchequer because she was a member of the family she believed herself entitled to consideration as such."

"Also, you can work up a large case of discontent by grumbling that you never have any time alone with your husband. That is one of the inevitable drawbacks which a young couple that gets married before being financially able to go it alone will have to put up with."

WEDDINGS

Miss Virginia Cudney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington E. Cudney of 4832 Ellis avenue, is to become the bride of Harry Parker of Detroit, Mich., at 3:30 o'clock this evening. The wedding is to be a small one, attended only by members of the family and intimate friends, at the Cudney residence, and will be followed by a dinner party. The ceremony is to be performed by the Rev. George Thomas at an improvised altar of giant yellow chrysanthemums and tall candles arranged in the bay window of the drawing room.

Miss Cudney's gown is of white velvet, trimmed with pearls, and the tulle veil, falling over a long velvet train depending from the gown, is fastened with a forehead band of rose-point and clusters of orange blossoms. Lilies of the valley and gardenias compose the bridal bouquet. Miss Margaret Fox is to be Miss Cudney's only attendant. She will wear pale green chiffon and carry a bouquet of yellow roses, delphinium, and other garden flowers.

Mr. Parker and his bride are to sail for a two months' honeymoon in South America. The wedding of Miss Catherine Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lloyd of Hubbard Woods, to William Ward Cline is to take place at 3:30 o'clock this evening at Christ church, Winnetka. The Rev. E. Ashby Gerhard officiating. A small reception for the two families is to be held at the residence of Mrs. George Forest of Hubbard Woods after the ceremony. Mrs. Theodore Cox of Atlanta, Ga., is to be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids are to be Miss Elizabeth Cline of Winnetka, Miss Elizabeth Pone, Mrs. Martin Seagars, and Miss Margaret Langworthy.

Miss Elizabeth Doty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Doty of Highland Park, is to become the bride of Lieut. John M. Evans of Fort Sheridan on Oct. 8. The ceremony is to take place at 3 o'clock at the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park, with the Rev. George S. Keller reading the service.

Black Satin-Back Crepe Is Always Smart

mer. Do not give way to any horrible apprehensions, however! A few of the great couturiers have made their skirts faintly suggestive of a real covering, but most of them have hardly yielded an inch.

No, the reason why these skirts seem longer is that they often indulge in a deceptive irregularity of length. Thanks to some trailing fold, to a skillful movement of drapery accompanied by streaming sash end, or to some similar device, the garment gains an effect lacking to the unbroken hemline.

Now one of the many avenues which lead to skirt variation is an overskirt or tunic slit down the direct front. We show this resource today in a charming afternoon gown of black satin-back crepe. The shiny surface is used for bodice and overskirt, while the dull side prevails in the light underskirt. A scarf collar succeeds in being impartial and showing both sides.

In this model the vogue of black and white is once more enunciated, for the trimming is supplied by silver embroidery applied to white satin. The silver note again gains authority in tiny buttons at the opening of the corsage. The skirt is skirted at the top.

Sense for Color Is a Prime Ingredient in Formula for Chic

(Chicago Tribune Press Correspondence.)

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—In this noted headquarters for the enviable possession, you are constantly trying to lay your finger on the ingredients of chic. You say to yourself that it must be the makeup, but you dismiss that when you see a face made up well enough but lacking the distinguishing thing we're talking about. Again, you'll suggest to yourself that it may be the walk, the gesture. But alone, while they give a great deal of charm, they hardly answer the conundrum. I thought I hit upon it the other day. I may have been wrong again in attributing to any one item in particular, but the more I think of color as the smart Parisienne practices it, the more I am convinced of its being the high C of the chic woman.

I was in a shoe shop on the Place Vendôme. A French woman who had it (chic, not Elinor Glyn's definition) from hat to heel, drew from her smart hands six or seven samples of dress materials, some very fine evening dress fabric and some cut from heavier stuffs. She was ordering her shoe wardrobe to match. And the infinite pains with which she studied the samples of leather offered for inspection impressed me. In one matching I was convinced the colors agreed, but to her they were not perfect, for she ordered a leather that would have to be re-dyed to match identically.

I took particular note thereafter of women I saw about me who struck me as especially well set up, and this color sense or color exactness of the French woman bore out the suspicion that it is a powerful ingredient in the formula for chic.

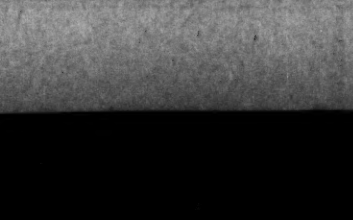

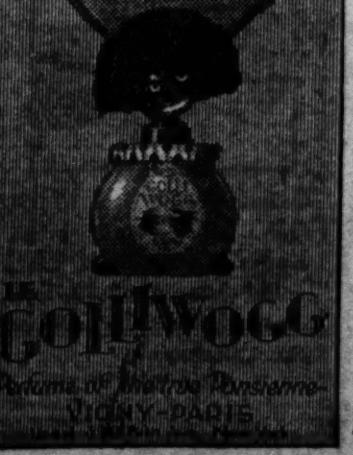

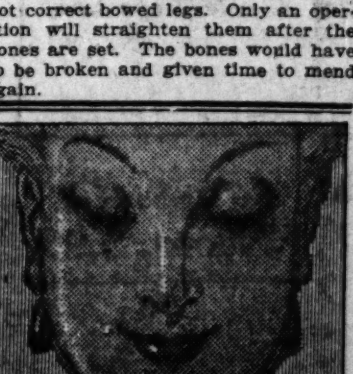

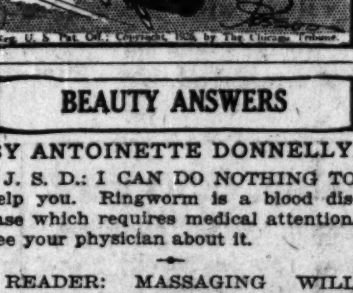

It is not that they stick to one color throughout, but they do so find them with which they studied the entire ensemble, including shoes, gloves, and hand bag. The consequence is that there are no broken lines in the silhouette.

Jean Nash, the supposedly best dressed woman in the world, said to me that she could not bear the title while there was a clever Parisienne left in the world.

"She'd never make a mistake on colors," said Miss Nash. "I would, and do."

If you study the working girls of Paris carefully you begin to realize that their reputation as the best dressed working girls is based on this highly developed color sense.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Coolidge who are not much of theatergoers, occupied the presidential box at the performance last night of the Marks brothers in "The Cocanuts," accompanied by the usual group of secret service men. Mrs. Coolidge rarely misses a good concert, but the President rarely attends the theater.

The United States ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Jacob Gould Schurman returned today to New York from Germany. Their son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. James J. McHugh, are at Quantico, Va., where the former is stationed.

Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes, formerly of Chicago, now director of music in the public schools of Washington, has returned from Chicago, where he spent the summer giving a course of lectures at the Conn. National Opera Company. Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," will spend the winter in Washington, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis. They have leased the home of Gen. and Mrs. William Mason Wright at 3028 Q street, in Georgetown.

Harry had just returned from a month's stay with relatives in the country and was telling us all about it.

"I liked the farm, fine," he announced, "and the dogs and horses and everything. And I like Uncle John and Aunt Emma, but Verona and Gordon, they quarrelled so much."

"Quarrelled?" exclaimed mother, "why, when I was there the children never had a disagreement."

"Well, they fight now and all the time," continued Harry. "If it wasn't me and Gordon it was me and Verona, every single day."

CAPTURE TWO; MAKE CHARGES OF QUACKERY

The state department of registration and education bagged two quack doctors yesterday. Theodore Johnson, 3165 Lincoln avenue, was found after a two months' search by Inspector John Powell and charged with dispensing drugs without a license.

Bennie Bugge, alias Hines, a middle-aged colored woman, 4635 South Michigan avenue, was taken into custody by Inspector W. H. Henderson for unlicensed treatment of ailments.

Three Accuse Johnson. Johnson, whom druggists have been warned against in the columns of the Chicago Retail Dealers' Association magazine, was faced by three complaints. John W. Folmer, chief inspector of the department said. Fred Hargrave, 1659 Fullerton avenue, is said to have been treated by Johnson with the result that he had to spend some time in the county hospital to recuperate from the malpractice. Thomas Farrell is reported to have rested four months in the county hospital after Johnson was through with him. Edward Anna, and Mary Freed, 4947 South Michigan avenue, charged Johnson with larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses.

The address on Johnson's card was 3165 Lincoln avenue. Inspectors said this turned out to be a college for drugless healers, which is not recognized by the state. Inspector Powell said that their literature advertised that a diploma may be received after twenty-eight hours study. These diplomas mean nothing, Mr. Powell said, because they do not entitle the bearer to a state license.

Those Back of Institution. F. W. Ackerman is the president and founder of the institution, F. L. Hinkley, the dean; E. K. Strum, the secretary; and J. L. Hughes, the registrar. Mr. Folmer said that none of these men are licensed. The college will be thoroughly investigated on Monday, Mr. Folmer said.

Johnson now rests in the Desplaines street police station, where he is booked for larceny and for running a con game, in addition to violation of the medical practice act. His case will be heard Tuesday in room 805, City Hall.

Bennie Bugge, the inspector said, has been soliciting patients from door to door with her husband, H. B. Bugge. Her husband could not be found yesterday, but Inspector Henderson continued his search during the night.

Monday will be loop day of the drive against the quacks, Mr. Folmer said yesterday. Twenty warrants for unlicensed chiropractors and naturopaths have been made out and will be issued Monday, he said. When they get the call, Mr. Folmer stated, they must come to room 805, City hall, and deposit $1,000 bond.

Many to Face Inquiry. Those who will be summoned are, according to Mr. Folmer: Dr. H. A. Hofmeister, 159 North State street. Dr. Fred Lange, 159 North State street. Dr. Karl Kahn, 159 North State street. Dr. J. Francis Doherty, 159 N. State street.

Siamese Prince Here on Way to Harvard Studies

Prince Asani of Siam spent a few bewildered moments in the heart of Chicago yesterday en route from his quiet east Indian home to Harvard university, where he will enroll as a freshman in the medical school. The prince was accompanied by F. B. Sayre, son-in-law of the late President Wilson, who has been in Siam on business.

STREET PROJECTS MAY BENEFIT BY EXTRA $5,500,000

Where to spend the extra $5,500,000 in bond funds made available by the recent boost in the city's debt limit through interpretation of a Superior court decision, will be decided at a meeting of city department heads early next week.

John J. Sloan, president of the board of local improvements, urges as the first thing, completion of the widening of 25th street from Cottage Grove to Archer avenue, a $7,000,000 project. Demolition of buildings has proceeded only as far as Michigan avenue.

The La Salle street widening from Ohio to Washington streets, including a new bridge, Mr. Sloan explained, will be delayed temporarily until special assessments are settled in court. Paving of Sixteenth street from Indiana to Michigan avenues and of Indiana avenue from 16th to 25th streets are other urgent improvements, Mr. Sloan declared. He also asserted the widening of Clinton street has been started, and by summer the work would be under way on all other streets involved in the warehouse district, Roosevelt road, Harrison, Canal, and Des Plaines streets.

Wacker drive will be completed and ready for the official opening Oct. 20, with a saving of $350,000, Mr. Sloan assured the mayor.

89TH DIVISION LAYS PLAN FOR ST. LOUIS RALLY

Members of the 89th division, A. E. F., in Chicago were called upon yesterday by C. C. Loehde of the 89th Division society of Chicago to attend a meeting next Tuesday night at 1088 Rush street to make plans for attending the grand reunion of the division in St. Louis Oct. 7 to Oct. 9.

The addresses of most of the Chicago men who were members of the division are not listed in the records of the society and Mr. Loehde asked that they communicate with him at Superior 7046 or with J. B. Kavanaugh, 327 South La Salle street, Harrison 5643.

TUNNEY ASKED TO APPEAR HERE FOR FLORIDA CHARITY

Gene Tunney, who won the world's heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia Thursday night, has been asked to come to Chicago to engage in an exhibition at the boxing show to be staged by the state boxing commission for the benefit of sufferers in Florida.

O. W. Huncke, chairman of the boxing commission, who is responsible for the benefit show, has sent a telegram to Manager Billy Gibson requesting that Tunney come to Chicago and appear at the show, which will be staged during the week of Oct. 2. Chairman Huncke, with the aid of local promoters, is arranging the card. All proceeds will go into the general relief fund for Florida sufferers.

Gene Opens His Reign by Hanging Up Gloves for Year

officials can come to a fellow in the dressing room and try to make him dress up like a duds to handle a champion in his corner. Only fancy," Mr. O'Brien exclaimed, "they weren't going to let me go into the corner with Dempsey unless I put on a sweater. I told them I couldn't work on a fighter if I got all dressed up, and it was a good thing I didn't because we had to go to work on Dempsey's legs after the first round and rub them in every intermission to the end. He's all gone. There's nothing left of him now. He's gone in the body."

Dempsey in Seclusion.
Gene Normie, Dempsey's temporary manager, wouldn't let any one see Jack, who lay abed in his own room nursing a horribly disfigured left eye.

"It's the worst eye I ever saw," Normie said. "There was a gash about three inches long and half an inch deep over the eye where Tunney butted him in the tenth round. The left side of his face has turned purple."

Floyd Fitzsimmons, one of Dempsey's closest friends, wandering down Broad street at two o'clock in the morning to clear his head after the morning's adventure of the evening, said he thought sure Dempsey had crossed his handlers and was carrying Tunney for the first three rounds.

Dempsey Still Drawing Card.
"I don't want any business with them. I'm going ahead and build up a challenger for Tunney in the new Garden this winter. There is this Monte Munn of Nebraska and Knute Hanson of Wisconsin and Fred Persson, the big Swede, and we can bring some fellow along all right. We might even use Dempsey in a return bout. He's not through as a fighter and he's always a great drawing card. Anyway, Tunney won't have to fight for a year, and then I'll put him on in some outdoor stadium."

Mr. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who outraged the refined sensibilities of the attendance by refusing to wear golf bloomers or a white sweater, and insisted on going into Dempsey's corner with his arms and shoulders naked in an old swimming shirt, was indignant as he checked out for New York.

"I don't know what the racket is coming to, but I fear the worst," Mr. O'Brien said, "when a lot of boxing

N.Y. Welcomes Tunney Back Home Today

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Gene Tunney will come home tomorrow to a welcome befitting a monarch. The new world's heavyweight champion, riding high on the crest of popularity as the king pin boxer of the universe, is due to arrive at noon from Philadelphia, and immediately he will be claimed and fêted by the city which produced him, the first world's heavyweight champion New York can boast.

Tunney is to leave the scene of his conquest at 10 o'clock. He will make the trip accompanied by his friend and admirer, Bill McCabe. He is due to arrive at the Pennsylvania station at 12 o'clock, where a committee of welcome, headed by "Big Tim" Mara, will greet him. Under a police escort, Tunney will be whisked down to the city hall on a route which will take him through the streets of the Greenwich Village where he spent his childhood days and to the greeting of a fellow villager, Mayor James J. Walker.

From the city hall the conquering hero will proceed by automobile and police escort to the Biltmore hotel, where he will be the guest at a luncheon arranged by Tim Mara and at which Mayor Walker will be toastmaster.

ter. The luncheon will be attended by 100 men prominent in all walks of life, conspicuous among them, in addition to Mayor Walker and Mara, being William Muldoon, venerable member of the state athletic commission; Bernard Gimbel, Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell, George Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, and Admiral Charles Plunkett.

Rain and Cold Postpones Ring Bouts at Cermak Park

Because of the rain and cold weather the boxing show scheduled for Cermak park last night has been postponed until Sept. 29. Tickets already purchased will be honored on the postponed date.

On Illinois route 10—the Ocean to Ocean trail—pavement has been repaired and the highway system is being cleaned up by the state highway department as fast as legal controversies can be ironed out and contracts let, according to a general highway report made yesterday by the Chicago Motor club.

One of the most important stretches to be tackled, from the Chicago driver's standpoint, is the shell shocked stretch of pavement on 95th street from Evergreen Park to Kean avenue. Bids for new 20 foot concrete pavement on this road were received by the state highway department this week and construction work will start as soon as the bids are approved.

Dirt and gravel roads in Illinois and neighboring states still are affected by recent rains and high water. All dirt roads in Winnebago county are reported impassable. The Illinois boulevard—state route 4—is reported open for travel south of Lincoln, where high water had closed the important trunk line since the floods began. Illinois route 5—the Grant highway—is open west of Freeport for light traffic only and passenger cars are going over the new pavement. On Illinois route 9 the new pavement is open between Farmington and Elwood and high water in Spoon river has needed to make the pavement on route 9 passable between Canton and Bushnell.

GERMAN CABINET APPROVES PLANS FOR FRENCH PACT

Committee to Work Out Deal Is Named.

BY GEORGE SELDES.
(Chicago Tribune Staff Service.)
BERLIN, Sept. 24.—The cabinet today unanimously accepted Foreign Minister Stresemann's report on his negotiations with Foreign Minister Briand for a complete rapprochement with France. The German government also formed a commission consisting of the minister of foreign affairs, minister of finance, and minister of commerce to continue the negotiations. Conference with a French commission, similarly appointed, will begin early in October, probably in Paris. Meanwhile, the ambassadors in Paris and Berlin of the two nations are continuing the preliminary negotiations. U. S. to Be Kept Informed.

Baron von Maltzan, ambassador to Washington, is conferring here with the leaders of the government and will be able to inform the American government on the progress of the negotiations.

It is believed to be an important feature, inasmuch as the present negotiations are being carried out upon President Coolidge's recent public suggestion that Europe make real peace and cooperate before again appealing to America.

Will Not Increase German Debt.

At the cabinet session Herr Stresemann discussed the use of Germany's many billion marks' worth of railroad obligations, in order to aid France in stabilizing her currency. He emphasized the point that the proposed agreement cannot place a heavier burden on Germany than the Dawes plan. He stated that Germany would pay 8,000,000 marks ($20,000,000) ransom for the Rhineland and Saar.

Experts pointed out tonight that the sale of 500,000 marks ($12,500,000) worth of railroad bonds which Germany owns, as well as any amounts which the Dawes commission supervises, will add no extra burden because such obligations already exist, even if they have not been sold to the public.

VANISHED JEWELS HALT INQUEST ON DIVORCEE SUICIDE

The inquest on the death of Miss Marjorie Clegg, 35 years old, who ended her life by inhaling gas in her apartment at 478 1/2 Magnolia avenue on Sept. 21, was continued indefinitely yesterday and the state's attorney's office was asked to investigate whether it developed that no trace can be found of a $10,000 diamond lavaliere, a wrist watch worth $100 and a Spanish shawl valued at $75, which belonged to Miss Clegg.

Four Summerville policemen, who took the woman's clothing, a $2,700 ring and a $1,000 ring for safe keeping, told they did not see the missing items.

Miss Alice O'Connell, a friend of Miss Clegg, told Deputy Coroner A. E. Fisher that she was positive her friend, a divorcee, possessed the missing jewelry, gifts from her husband, Miss Marjorie Clegg, 309 Sunnyvale avenue, another friend, said she had seen the articles in the apartment the afternoon before Miss Clegg's death.

MEXICAN NAMES OBREGON TO HEAD WAR ON YAQUIS

Grayson, Sonora, Mexico, Sept. 24.—Official communications posted in the principal pavilions today announced Gen. Alvaro Obregon, former president, had been named chief of military operations against the rebellious Yaqui Indians in Sonora.

The Yaquis retreated yesterday before the forces of Gen. Benito Bernal after an engagement of several hours near Jari, a small town between Bacum and Turin, Sonora, just north of Corral. The point is an important rail junction of the Southern Pacific of Mexico and a branch running up the Yaqui river valley.

Troop trains arriving here with soldiers to reinforce federal forces now in the field present the appearance of moving vans rather than troop trains. The cars are loaded both inside and out with the families of the soldiers and their effects.

ARRANGED FOR SHOOTING WIFE.
John J. Malloy, a suspended policeman of the Austin station, was arrested before Harry Hamilton in the Chicago avenue court yesterday on a charge of shooting his wife, Louise, on Aug. 26. The shooting occurred in front of their home, 141 North Central avenue. Malloy asserted that his wife was accidentally discharged.

Let's go—
The doors of the Oriental theater opened, W-G-N, 7:15 to 8, for Paul Ash and his array of popular entertainers, each of these, including the orchestra and Ash himself, in the role of announcer, doing their stuff in a popularly approved way.

The doors of the Uptown theater opened, WEBB, 7:30 to 8, for a special stage program, including the orchestra and the pipe organ—all of which would have made an interesting feature had the telephone line been on good behavior.

Two half hour vocal recitals at 8: First, George Simons, lyric tenor, WMAQ, in Italian songs. If any of the listeners wish to put this rare voice to a test, stop on a pair of earphones.

Second, Lewis Meehan, tenor, KYW, Edison studio. This justly popular tenor chose a program of familiar and unfamiliar numbers.

An altogether choice and admirably presented Russian program, WEBB, 8:20 to 9, instrumental, mostly. Highlights included a two-piano version of Tchaikovsky's Concerto in E flat minor, and two of Nikolai Medtner's songs (soprano solo).

Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," WLS, 8:15, in a talk on "Journey with Famous Authors." The writer regrets having heard only the closing words of this well known author's talk.

Aha! Melus, concert pianist, WMAQ, 8:30. An artist with broad tone and deep feeling. Evidently plays with finger tips, fingers, arms, body, brain, and heart.

Indian day feature, WEBB, 9:15; Charles F. Fitzgerald (American Indian) in a frank talk on the treatment of the Indian by the white man. A talk also by Frank Kuhn (also an American Indian) followed.

WCRD, 9:20, discovered on the air at 9 in one of its magnificent concert series direct from the Zion tabernacle. Marvellous how this chorus and pipe organ toll out this glorious climax after climax.

The Whitney instrumental trio, WMAQ, 9:30, repeating in a satisfactory way Calman's trio in D major. Phantom Violin, W-G-N, 9:30 to 10. The radio audience might profitably try the earphones here also. They will enjoy hearing the vitality of the playing and the singing quality of the violin.

Let's stop.

Class Eye Made Andreus Insane, Killer, Is Verdict

Fletcher Andrews, 32, had an accident when a child that caused him to wear a glass eye. Brooding over it, believing himself called "the ugliest man in the world," he killed Edward H. Parr, the jury in the Criminal court before Judge Lindsey adjudged Andrews insane at the time he shot Parr on Wilson and Racine avenues Aug. 2.

Dr. William O. Krohn and Charles Reed, alienists, had presented the court with the opinion that Andrews was incurably insane, due to a delusion, starting with the glass eye.

Coolidge Reinstates Flyer Dismissed as Careless

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—President Coolidge today reinstated a flyer dismissed last week for carelessness. The flyer, which had been dismissed for carelessness, was reinstated after a review by the military court martial assigned to Capt. William M. Randolph, flight commander in the army air service, who several months ago was convicted of engaging in hazardous flying. The court martial found the captain guilty of having disobeyed orders to refrain from flying at course and altitudes which make a safe landing impossible in case of motor failures, when other courses are available. The President commuted the sentence to a reprimand.

Funeral Services Today for Mrs. Susan Sherin

Mrs. Susan Sherin, 7401 Crandon avenue, a resident of Chicago for more than twenty years, died at the age of 77. She was the widow of the late Rev. Samuel Sherin and mother of Dr. W. Morley Sherin. Thursday funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. today in Daylight church, 47th street and St. Lawrence avenue. Interment will be at Mount Hope cemetery.

GENEVA, Sept. 24. League of nations will "normal." These were the words uttered by the president of the assembly, who had just declared the seventh annual session of the league, which opened Sept. 6.

Germany's entry into the league, has forever altered the situation of international law who have complete league embraced only nations of the world those nations which are difficulties of vital importance.

"We have witnessed President Ninchich's own nations who have in his own strife sit side by side together under a voluntary obedience to the league's covenant."

Urges Disarmament. The president urged the assembly to apply themselves to the task of securing the peace of the world by the projected international conference and of the league.

"General and loyal will gain for the league the support of the world."

The assembly in a resolution declared that the fundamental ideas of the league of nations are the basis of the world's peace and that the league's purpose is to secure the peace of the world by the projected international conference and of the league.

The most urgent need of the world is the establishment of a permanent peace among nations. The league of nations is the only organization that has the power to bring about this peace.

The league of nations is the only organization that has the power to bring about this peace.

Move to Ban Arms. One of the last acts of the assembly was the adoption of a resolution which was signed by the plenipotentiary governments, including Abyssinia, which are the representatives of the nations agreed to sign the covenant.

The convention calls for the suppression of arms and the complete abolition of all its forms. It also calls for the compulsory or forced disarmament of all nations.

Another of the final resolutions of the assembly was the approval of the republic of Armenia as a member of the league.

The league of nations is the only organization that has the power to bring about this peace.

Urges Rights for Women. The league of nations is the only organization that has the power to bring about this peace.
